24,720 Miles in 18 Days
Some Ladies' Hats
Gen. Butler's Peace Plan
Some Gods Dislike Music

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

H. R. Ekins, first class newspaper man, has gone around the globe by airplane, covering 24,720 miles in 18 days, 14 hours, 56 minutes. Such a trip seems wonderfully fast now. Soon it will seem wonderfully slow.

Air progress is rapid. Because it was done scientifically by machinery, the 18-day trip seems less romantic than the Nelly Bly 70-odd day trip that beat Jules Verne's "around the world in 80 days." Nelly Bly, clever newspaper woman, knew how to make it interesting, going out of her way to travel by elephant, camel, jinrikshas, etc. Flying around the world costs about $5000.

Flying across oceans and continents has already become a matter of course.

A paragraph was printed here about Major Gardiner, who flew from New York to Moscow, 5000 miles, in 68 hours, 52 minutes of flying time. Frank Schroth, editor and publisher of the Scranton Republican, has recently returned from a similar New York to Moscow trip, made in 57 flying hours, 12 hours less than Major Gardiner's flying time. Mr. Schroth says "it depends on the planes you catch, not on yourself. I was fortunate in making the record-breaking Hindenburg 42-hour trip as part of my journey."

Around the world about as fast as the sun seems to go will come eventually. From Chicago around the world and back to Chicago in five days will come soon.

Some day woman, let us hope, will balance her fashion budget, decide just what she wants to wear, and then wear it, as men have done, but the day is far away. These are some of the hats from which your wife, daughter, sister will choose this season:

Hats shaped like East Indian warshields, hats heavy in gold embroidery, flat pill-box turbans, gold braided; Russian style hats off the face, with tall tiara fronts, hats of Persian lamb and embroidered felt, small toques, dipped down front and back, covered with soft feathers, "the military touch predominating."

WHY, do you suppose women take so much trouble to spoil faces and heads naturally beautiful? It cannot all be the fault of hatmakers.

General Smedley D. Butler, retired fighting major-general of the United States Marines, asks the Women's Christian Temperance Union to start a campaign against drunken automobile drivers, and also help peace by working for a Constitutional amendment forbidding the President or Congress to send troops out of the country.

You cannot change men by legislation, as was discovered in our prohibition mistake; you must change the men from the inside.

Besides, if we have more wars, the first thing would be to send American fighters out of the country in airplanes to the capital city of the attacking nation, to gas, bomb and wreck it with as little loss of time as possible.

Wars will be prevented when rulers of nations, including the richest men, know that beginning a war will mean having your cities destroyed.

Hindus and Mohammedans continue their killing in Bombay, one religion lying in wait for the other. 50 killed 400 wounded thus far. An epidemic is feared, as garbage collectors will not work, disliking to be shot. Hindus have music in their temples, their queer gods are supposed to like it. Mohammedans despise music in temples; Mohammed and his one god, Allah, do not like it. So Mohammedans and Hindus murder each other to please their gods that actually have no existence—according to our ideas. We may be mistaken; they think us mistaken in our religious beliefs.

War costs money even when you have nothing to do with it, and are not responsible. The big war cost Uncle Sam ten thousand millions in one lump when our "gallant allies" agreed to welch on their debts, and cost him other tens of millions. Even the little Spanish civil war cost us money; United States exports to Spain are cut down 85 per cent. Uncle Sam used to sell many motor trucks, buses, lubricating oils, etc., no selling now. And we did not even sell any ammunition to make up for it—fortunately.

It is good news that the earthquake in Venice contented itself with shaking down old chimneys, destroying no ancient buildings, or works of art.

An earthquake in Venice is inconvenient, for you cannot follow the usual course and "rush from your house into the street." If you rush from your house you may land in the canal.

MISS JANICE MINER

Will Wed Night Club Singer

THEY SLIP AWAY TO FILE INTENTIONS IN HARTFORD

Well, it didn't do Socialite Janice Miner and Crooner Jack Berry much good—going to Hartford, Ct., to file their marriage intentions.

Today they had invited just the thing that pretty, post-deb Janice wanted to avoid. And that was publicity.

She was asleep when the reporters phoned to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Curtis Miner, her parents, but Mrs. Miner answered.

She explained that Janice wanted "to escape notice" and didn't want a big wedding with frills and all that. Anyhow, Mrs. Miner added, Janice's brother, Sheldon, lived in Hartford.

"The date for the wedding isn't set yet," the mother explained, "but it will be pretty soon."

Fiance Jack, who lives in Jason street, Arlington, and sings at a Wa[illegible] night-club, thought the wedding would be "in a few weeks." He said he didn't see any particular reason to file in Hartford except that Janice wanted it.

The betrothal announcement of Miss Miner and Mr. Berry, whose full name is John Harvey Campbell Berry, was made in June at a luncheon in the home of the bride-to-be. She is an amateur theatrical enthusiast and has studied stagecraft at the Vesper George School of Art.

Vandenberg on Air Tonight, Promises "Debate" Reply

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 20 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.), Michigan, promised "to have something to say" today in Wilmington, Del., about the interruption of his radio "debate" with the recorded voice of President Roosevelt.

Vandenberg attacked the Roosevelt administration on three counts last night at a Republican rally, but declined comment on Saturday's broadcasting incident. He said he had "great respect for the President; but he is still my favorite witness."

Senator Vandenberg's radio address may be heard locally between 8 and 8:30 tonight on station WEEI.

He assailed the administration for its "repudiation of the checks and balances theory of government." Its doctrine of "economic scarcity" in curbing business, and "its failure to restore public credit to a healthy state."

3 MOTHERLESS GIRLS JAILED IN MILK THEFT

LOWELL TRIO MAY SERVE 5 YEARS

Copyright, 1936, by the Boston Evening American

For stealing two bottles of milk, three young girls are serving five years each in a Massachusetts prison.

This disclosure was made today when — the Boston Evening American learned exclusively—State Corrections Commissioner Arthur T. Lyman recommended to Governor Curley that he grant them full pardons.

The girls have been prisoners at the Women's Reformatory in Sherborn since September 1.

They are Helen Mahar, 17; Catherine G. Groton, 18, and Winifred Riley, 19, all of Lowell.

All are motherless and members of large families of children. None ever had a previous record of arrest.

Pardons Urged

Confirming the exclusive story printed here, Governor Curley revealed today he will recommend full pardons for the girls in the "milk bottle" case when the Executive Council meets on Thursday. The Governor criticized Judge Fisher who, he said, is 75 years old. Commissioner Lyman withheld comment on the case.

PRIEST INTERCEDES

They saw two quarts of milk on a store doorstep. They were hungry, they say, and on impulse they took the milk.

They were arrested a short distance from the scene and sentenced by Judge Frederic A. Fisher in Lowell district court—doomed to serve 14 months at Sherborn before being eligible for parole, doomed to spend five years there, if they could not earn time off.

The case was first called to the attention of Commissioner Lyman in the department of correction by Rev. James McCafferty of St. Stephen's Church, Framingham, chaplain of the reformatory.

Father McCafferty, deeply moved after a month of contact with the girls and learning their story, made a trip to Boston to call on Com-

U. S. Youths Led 'In Blind Alley,' Kansan Says

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

Aboard Landon Special, En Route to Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (INS)—Carrying his Presidential campaign into California with a fresh attack upon the New Deal, Governor Alfred M. Landon today pledged a continuation of the Civilian Conservation Corps, but only while initiating educational and merit systems within the youth organization.

The Republican nominee charged the administration with leading hundreds of thousands of youngsters in the CCC "down a blind alley." He declared it was failing to fit the young Americans for places in private life, while turning all administrative jobs over to politicians." These jobs, he added, should go to the youths themselves under a merit system.

Mrs. Anne Macy:

Aide Who Gave Helen Keller a Voice Dies

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—The woman who gave half a century of her life to Helen Keller, brought speech and comparative sight to America's noted deaf mute author and lecturer, died today as she had lived—still holding her famous pupil's hand.

The end of the devotion of Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy for the girl who conquered eternal darkness came early this morning in the home they shared with Miss Polly Thomson, Miss Keller's secretary, at Forest Hills, on Long Island. Mrs. Macy was 70 years old.

Years and years ago, Mrs. Macy taught Miss Keller to "read" by "writing" words on the blind girl's palm with her fingertips. A miracle of education and patience later gave Miss Keller the power to speak, even to read, as she became one of the most famous women of the past decades.

But this morning time rolled back again. Miss Keller sat at the bedside of her benefactress. Mrs. Macy was in a coma, as she had been for four days, following a heart attack.

This time it was Miss Keller's turn to try desperately to awaken recognition through her fingertips, as Mrs. Macy had taught her. But

'SACK' TORSO OFF QUINCY, SAYS FLIER

BULLETIN

State Detective Captain John Stokes today telephoned Boston police headquarters to ask that the harbor police boat be sent at once to Rock Island off Hough's Neck. The necessary orders were given by radio.

An airplane pilot, flying over the harbor at Hough's Neck, Quincy, today, sighted what he believes is the missing remains of Grayce Asquith, Weymouth "Merry Widow" victim of the sack murder.

The object he took to be the head and torso of the slain woman was seen floating a few feet below the surface about 200 feet off the Germantown section shore.

Police and coast guard, searching the area in boats, were directed to the spot, which is close to Rock Island, where 19-year-old Victor Davidson of Powsey street, Quincy, reported he saw the remains near his dory last evening and where, throughout the night, a search netting promising clues was carried on.

HUNT 2 BODIES

Shortly after daybreak, on mudflats in the same area, a burlap potato bag, weighted with a three-pound slab of soapstone, was found, the bag being of the same type that wrapped one of the victim's legs recovered off the East Boston shore two weeks ago yesterday.

As the search was concentrated off the Hough's Neck shore, with scores of craft participating, new clues convinced state detectives that Mrs. Asquith's missing admirer, John A. Lyons, the Back Bay war veteran reported in her com-

G. O. P. WARS ON MORE 'BOGUS VOTERS' IN BRIGHTON

CRIMINAL ACTION PLANNED IN FLAGRANT CASES

Summonses for 30 or more persons suspected of being registered illegally on the voting lists of Ward 21, Brighton, were issued by the Boston election commission today on complaints of the Republican State Committee.

Fifteen of the group have been ordered to appear before the commission on Thursday morning at 9:30 and the other fifteen to appear Monday.

This action came on the heels of the commission's order to strike from the voting lists the names of men and women who failed to answer summonses yesterday. There may be 45 more complaints before the protest deadline at 5 p. m., it was said.

Attorneys Charles Alpert and Donald H. Fassett warned that the Republican committee, which they represent, means business and will follow through with criminal prosecution in flagrant cases.

"There are hundreds of suspicious cases," Alpert declared, "but, because of shortness of time, the cases against them cannot be prepared tonight.

MAP CRIMINAL ACTION

"However, we have a corps of attorneys and clerks who volunteered their services to the Republican state committee, and they are checking every name on the voting list that is not carried on the police listing of last January 1.

"On election day we will have watchers at the polls. We will challenge those suspected of fraud. If they insist on voting we will prosecute them criminally."

Alpert also said that in some of the more flagrant cases criminal action against the offenders may be taken before the election.

George L. Rabb, another of the G. O. P. attorneys stated that the investigators are chiefly concerned with cases where "friends of political leaders are involved." He said:

AFTER LEADERS

"We intend to smoke out the real leaders who, we feel, know a great deal more about this than they would be willing to admit.

"Rather than 'take the rap,' the tools of the political leaders may decide to bring those higher up into the picture as it is unfolded before the courts."

Another charge of alleged flouting of the election laws in Boston came from New York through Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro, Eastern Republican campaign leader.

Martin's charges came in the announcement of the appointment of Charles Francis Coe to form and head an organization of vigilantes to watch the polls on election day.

Other cities, as well as Boston, will be watched by this group, Martin said.

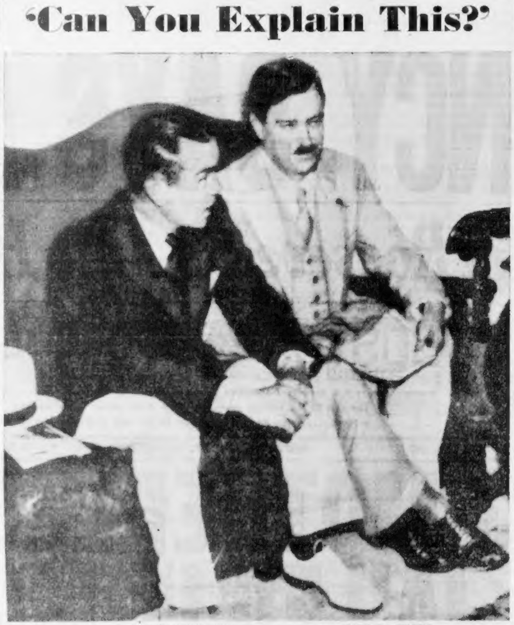
'Can You Explain This?'



DR. STANLEY HIGH EARL BROWDER

Here's the photograph that James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, was asked to explain today. The picture shows Dr. Stanley High, head of the Good Neighbor League, an organization devoted to the interests of the New Deal, conferring with Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President. "Can you explain this?" a man asked the President's son.

JIM ROOSEVELT HECKLED ON BROWDER

At the very opening of new Roosevelt headquarters in Dewey square today, listeners were thrown into an uproar when James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, was called upon to explain a photograph showing Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President and Dr. Stanley High, head of the Good Neighbor League, a New Deal propaganda organization, in close discussion.

Roosevelt was confronted with the photograph while he was conducting the opening noon-day forum of the Roosevelt Business Men's League at Dewey square.

At the conclusion of his address in defence of the New Deal policies, Roosevelt called for questions from the floor and was immediately confronted with the photograph.

HIGH AND BROWDER

"I took a great deal of interest in what your father had to say in Syracuse when he announced that he did not want the support of Communists in this country," an unidentified man in the audience said.

"I have a photograph of Dr. Stanley High of the Good Neighbor League and Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, which was taken while they were conferring."

The man passed the photograph to the President's son, and said:

"Can you explain that?"

Roosevelt examined the photograph and stated,

"I have been photographed with many of the biggest Republicans in this state. That doesn't necessarily mean that I subscribe to their views. I have spoken from the same platform with persons who hold opposite views to mine and I have never objected to being protographed with them.

"NO SIGNIFIANCE"

"Apparently, this photograph was taken at a forum meeting where Browder had been invited to give his views and Dr. High had been invited to express his views.

"I don't see how you can attach any significance to a photograph of this kind."

In response to another question, Roosevelt referred to his father as "the doctor whom the people of this country called in 1933 to cure its ills."

"In attempting to cure those ills, hasn't Dr. Roosevelt left the patient with an incurable disease in the form of taxes?" he was asked.

The President's son replied that in some cases it is necessary to use a large bandage to bind up a wound.

"The taxes are the bandages used by the administration to heal the nation's ills. As the wound heals the bandage is taken off and eventually it will be taken off entirely," he said.

Roosevelt stated that the Works Progress Administration would be continued so long as the administration felt that there was need of relief.

Collector of the Port of Boston Joseph Maynard presided at the meeting.

Irked by 'Red Deal'

Ford of Harvard Backs Landon

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Mounting evidence that the New Deal has lost the confidence of independent thinkers in the educational field came today with an announcement by Professor Jeremiah D. M. Ford, of Harvard University, former president of the American Catholic Historical Society, that he will not support Roosevelt for re-election.

Professor Ford's stand comes hard on the heels of denunciations of the New Deal delivered by Presidents Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth College and Tyler Dennett of Williams College.

Reflections of the present-day attitude towards the Roosevelt administration is also seen in polls completed among the student bodies like Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in which Governor Alfred M. Landon, Republican candidate for President, is the outstanding choice.

DEEP SIGNIFICANCE

In the defection of Professor Ford, political students see even a deeper significance, because of the fact that the professor is internationally recognized as an authority on Spanish history and literature.

He is Smith professor of French and Spanish literature at Harvard. His position against Roosevelt's re-election was released through the New England headquarters of the National Jeffersonian Democrats.

Because of his intimate knowledge of the Spanish people and the history of that country, Professor Ford was motivated in part by fear of what has happened abroad, it is understood, and the fact that President Roosevelt has, so far, declined to free himself of the radical element which exerts so powerful an influence in his administration.

The professor is a native of Cambridge and served for several years as a Democrat on the Cambridge school committee.

REAL DEMOCRAT

In stating his position, he declared he believes in the doctrines of the Democratic party as expressed by former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York as opposed to the theories of the New Deal.

Through Chairman Sinclair Weeks, of the Republican State Committee, a strong protest against the action of WPA Administrator Paul Edwards, in using free time on Station WEEI to tell of the "benefits" of the Works Progress Administration, has been lodged with that station.

Pointing out that WEEI was one of the eastern stations of the Columbia network from which Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's speech was cut off in the middle on Saturday night, Chairman Weeks demanded free time to reply to Edwards.

"There is a great deal that I should like to say on the subject of WPA myself, particularly in regard to its supervision and the pressure being brought to bear on its members to consider their pay envelopes a gift from politicians and not from the taxpayers," the Weeks' protest read in part.

"There are a good many other messages that I should like to convey to them which are very different from the messages now being sent to them from Washington and officials here.

"Since you have given free time to Mr. Edwards for what is clearly political propaganda, would you kindly advise me if you could give me substantially the same time at the same hour.

"I should like to arrange with Mr. Edwards to have a WPA orchestra and entertainment.

"I should be particularly interested in your reply to this letter in view of the fact that it was on your station that Senator Vandenberg was cut off in the middle of his speech Saturday night."

According to Richard Leary, director of the National Union for Social Justice in western Massachusetts, Father Coughlin was scheduled to speak.

The use of the grounds, which seats 10,000, was denied Leary by Lucien Garneau, president of the Springfield Ice Rink Association, owner of the grounds and whom Leary contacted by telephone at Quebec, Canada.

Leary later announced he was planning to ask for the municipal auditorium which seats 3500. Mrs. Agnes C. Reavey, Democratic candidate for Congress from the second district who has received the endorsement of the National Union for Social Justice, expressed surprise concerning the rally.

She told reporters,

Curley Stand on Youths Hit

By L. CONANT, JR.

William A. Parks, Boston attorney and son of Commissioner Joseph A. Parks of the State Industrial Accident Board, in a supporting speech for John W. Haigis, G. O. P. candidate for governor, today charged that the younger generation is not receiving a square deal from the Curley administration.

Speaking at the Washington street forum Parks declared that the younger generation is not "going to be fooled by any meaningless campaign slogans" but is determined to restore the state government to the "sound position she held prior to the current administration on Beacon Hill."

In one of his most lashing broadsides of the campaign against the New Deal, John W. Haigis warned a large audience here that "there can be no hope for the American wage earner under a system of planned economy which seeks to restore prosperity to all other parts of the world in advance of the United States."

He branded as "false and inaccurate" the statement of James Roosevelt in which he said that "my father gave textile workers 40 hours' work a week, a vote for Landon means 48 or more working hours a week."

"I can assure you that any suggestion of an increase in the number of working hours per week from 40 to 48 is not in accord with the views of the textile industry.

At Haverhill, the ticket was greeted with an enthusiastic overflow audience of upwards of 1500.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Republican senatorial nominee, was cheered when he scored what he termed a "scheme to tar me with the brush of racial prejudice."

"I have referred all such rumors," he declared, "to my secretary, Francis McCarthy, for investigation.

Essex County Waits Dems

By WILLIAM C. CONWAY

Democratic state ticket candidates wind up their battle for ballots in Republican balliwicks in Essex County tonight and are eagerly looking forward to the visit of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to Massachusetts tomorrow.

The rally schedule made up by the Democratic state committee will take the candidates tonight into Saugus, Lynn, Salem, Marblehead and Swampscott.

Governor James M. Curley, State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley and other candidates on the state ticket have no fear of entering enemy territory after their experiences of being enthusiastically cheered in the home cities of their G. O. P. opponents.

As party leaders worked on their plans for the President's visit, Governor Curley, State Treasurer Hurley and other state ticket candidates carried their battle for election into Beverly, home city of Representative Henry Cabot Lodge, G. O. P. nominee for Senator.

The candidates were cordially received by an overflow crowd of 800 persons in the Briscoe school hall in Beverly.

MAKES LETTER PUBLIC

State Treasurer Hurley beat his Republican opponent to the "punch" when he made public a letter which was sent by Representative Christian A. Herter of the Back Bay and a member of the Republican State Committee, to George Murphy, comptroller of the state.

In the letter Herter is quoted as asking Murphy to supply him with the figures showing the expenditures for telephone expenses in the treasurer's office for the past year and also to supply him with the information as to whether 12,000 Christmas cards sent out last year by the State Treasurer were paid for by the Commonwealth.

Hurley said that the usual annual expenditure for telephones in his office is $1200. This year, however, the amount is $1800, of which sum $600 are his own personal calls.

"It may interest my opponent to know that I have always paid my own personal telephone calls.

"I have already paid $250 of the $600 owed, and the receipt is waiting to be examined by any member of the Republican state committee who wishes to see it," Hurley said.

"The stupid request concerning my Christmas cards is too humorous to answer, but if they desire an answer, I have receipted bills for the printing of the cards and the postage if they care to see them," the Democratic gubernatorial nominee announced.

CURLEY PUT IN ROOSEVELT CAR

Massachusetts tomorrow, for his New England campaign swing.

The questions were framed today by Republican State Chairman Sinclair Weeks and sent in a telegram to the White House.

They are:

1—Why did you choose a resident of the Bronx, New York (Paul Edwards), to administer relief in Massachusetts? Is there no one in this State whom you could trust?

2—If, as you claim, conditions are getting better this year, why are relief appropriations for the fiscal year 1937 greater than for any year of your administration?

3—Why did you authorize Wallace to put out of production 30,000,000 acres of fertile land at a cost of $1,500,000,000 and at the same authorize Ickes to make fertile 15,000,000 acres of desert land at a cost of $2,000,000,000?

4—Why have 25,000,000 bushels of wheat been imported into the United States in the last seven months when you are paying our farmers to destroy wheat?

5—Do you approve of the administration given Massachusetts by the Democratic party during the past two years?

RUNS SCHEDULED

As the schedule runs, the Roosevelt campaign special will leave Washington tonight and arrive in Providence, R. I., early tomorrow morning. A speech will be delivered there from the state capitol steps.

Proceeding by auto from Providence, the executive will visit in rapid order Fall River, New Bedford, Fairhaven, Taunton, Brockton, Quincy, Boston and Worcester, Mass. In the latter city, late Wednesday evening, he will make another major campaign address over a national radio hookup.

HALF DAY OFF

Meanwhile Governor Curley announced that only a skeleton staff would be kept at the State House while President Roosevelt is in Boston. Most of the 1500 employes will be allowed to go at 1 o'clock.

Because of the President's visit, too, the weekly meeting of the Governor's Council has been postponed until Thusday afternoon.

City of Boston employes will be dismissed at 2 p. m.

Michael J. Sullivan, attache of the governor stated this afternoon that President Roosevelt will ride with Governor Curley from the Worcester Auditorium, following the speech there, to the Presidential train in the Worcester station.

From New Bedford came the announcement that the Manufacturers' Association of that city had issued the statement that all mills would be closed from 10 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. during the President's visit.

HOPKINS FACES WPA QUIZ

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, was ordered by the Federal district court here today to show in court Monday why he should not be compelled to open records of his office to New Jersey Republican leaders.

Charging a "breach of trust" and that WPA records had been used by the Democratic administration for campaign purposes, a group of the New Jersey Republicans asked the court to direct Hopkins to make WPA's files available to them.

Roosevelt Plans Midwest Tour

Washington, Oct. 20 (INS)—President Roosevelt will make a final swing into Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania immediately following the New England tour upon which he starts tonight, according to plans tentatively approved this afternoon.

Returning to Washington late Thursday night after a fast-moving two-day auto tour of Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut, according to schedules now being worked out, the executive would leave again late Friday night for Fort Wayne, Ind., where a major campaign address would be made, presumably Saturday night.

En route eastward from Fort Wayne, the President would stop at Toledo and Akron, two of Ohio's biggest industrial centers, and then hit once more at Scranton, Pa., heart of the anthracite mining region.

This schedule would enable Mr. Roosevelt to be in New York city on October 28 for the 50th anniversary ceremony at the Statue of Liberty. His final campaign address will be given in New York city on October 31.

HUSBAND TO BURY VICTIM

Girl Wed on Day Mother Died

Bennington, N. H., Oct. 20—Two men who loved the same woman struggled with widely divergent problems here today.

The woman, Mrs. Rosina Gilman, 39-year-old mother of five, was the cause but was little help—having been the victim of brutal murder on the slope of rambling Temple mountain.

The man she loved unwisely, Carl Barrett, [illegible]-year-old cripple, faced his worry in a murder charge that carries a sentence of hanging.

The man she loved enough once to marry and then left, faced the problem of caring for four of her children in a tar-papered shack he calls home.

Bridal—Murder

The other child was married on the day her mother disappeared. The wedding ceremony took place within a few miles from the thicket in which the battered body of her mother lay.

The husband she left two years ago to seek freedom and a gayer life has forgiven. He will bury her in Mount Calvary Cemetery, on a knoll that looks down on the ramshackle hut he calls home.

George Gilman, 48, [illegible], trusting father of these four children his murdered wife has left behind, says simply:

"It's the least I can do for her. She made her mistakes; I've made mine."

He glanced at the rough one-story structure he built with his own hands and covered with tar paper and added:

"I guess that I'll have to put an ell on the house now that Rose has gone and left the kids with me."

While George Gilman prepares to start life anew in the cabin perched on the leafy retreat of a rugged New Hampshire mountainside, the state prepared to try Barrett, Peterboro laborer, whom they say has confessed to the brutal murder-robbery of the comely young mother.

Lodged in the Hillsboro County Jail, Barrett steadfastly refused to elaborate on his confession, or to sign his name to one, until he had benefit of counsel.

Death's Tryst

High Sheriff Richard M. O'Dowd, who with Deputy Sheriff Thomas Largay, arrested Barrett, stated that Barrett had made a complete confession to the murder of the woman and robbing her of $60 after a night ride and drinking party in Fitchburg, Mass.

Last night as early dusk settled over the foothills of the White Mountains Barrett led police to a spot in Harrisville, eight miles from Peterboro where he had been arraigned and held without bail for murder, to locate the pocketbook of the murder victim.

Police say he confessed to throwing the pocketbook into a culvert in Harrisville after he read in the papers that the murderer of Mrs. Gilman was being sought, in an effort to cover up the trail as to the location of the woman's body.

Barrett, the youth who has confessed to robbing and killing Mrs. Gilman, has a criminal record. He served a sentence of from 1½ to 2½ years in the jail at Hillsboro, for larceny of an automobile in 1931. Later that same year he was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction, but sentence was suspended on a charge of passing bad checks. On another occasion he served 60 days in the House of Correction for drunken driving.

$19 a Week

One week from today Barrett will be taken to Peterboro for a hearing on the murder charge, police say, preliminary to trial before the grand jury.

Today the body of the murder victim arrived at Jellison's funeral parlor here. George Gilman, led his four children, Stella, 17, Zenophon, 14, Lawrence, 11, and little Rita, six, to the side of their mother.

He revealed to reporters that it was on the day of his wife's disappearance, October 2, that his eldest daughter, Louise, 20, was married in St. Patrick's Church, which is just over the hill a bit.

HELEN KELLER'S AIDE, TEACHER DIES AT 70

the aged woman died without rallying.

Heartbroken, Miss Keller, now 56 years old, said as she left the bedside:

"My teacher is set free at last from pain and blindness. I pray for strength to endure the silent dark until she smiles on me again.

"My teacher has gone from me a little while, but I shall feel her presence anew when my eyes are blessed with light, my ears saved unto harmony and my imprisoned light set free."

4 DAYS AT BEDSIDE

During the four days of Mrs. Macy's illness Miss Keller spent all her waking hours at the bedside. Only one week from today, Oct. 27, another in the long line of honors and tributes that have come to them over the years was to have been paid them both by the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

They were to have received together the association medals for 1936 for "leadership of youth and development of American character."

They were inseparable, particularly after the death of Mrs. Macy's husband, John A. Macy, an author, several years ago.

BROKE UP ROMANCE

Strangely enough it was believed to be Mrs. Macy's opposition that broke up Miss Keller's only serious romance 20 years ago. A Boston newspaperman met Miss Keller, already famous as a lecturer, and the courtship progressed without Mrs. Macy's knowledge.

The reporter and Miss Keller held hands in the moonlight on nearby beaches, talking through their fingertips. Then Mrs. Macy discovered the romance, there was a flurry, an exchange of notes in Braille, and the suitor disappeared from the scene.

"It flowered under an inauspicious star," Miss Keller said sadly.

Anne Sullivan was a pupil of Laura Bridgman, a teacher at the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Boston, which was organized by Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, husband of Julia Ward Howe. Howe was the first physician to break the walls of silence and darkness for a deaf and blind person, and Laura Bridgman was his most noted pupil.

Anne, who was born in Feeding Hills, near Springfield, Mass., April 14, 1866, was virtually blind when she entered the institution in 1880, but recovered sufficient sight to enable her to read. She learned to study with her fingers and also learned to "talk" through the manual telegraphic or finger alphabet.

In 1886 a call came from Captain Arthur Keller in Alabama for help for his seven-year-old daughter, Helen, who since 19 months of age had been blind and deaf. The Boston institution picked Miss Sullivan.

From the start Miss Sullivan began spelling words into her hands. Helen repeated the signals with no inkling of what they meant.

One day Miss Sullivan pumped water over one hand while she spelled "water" into the other. Helen grasped that, pointed to her mentor and felt the word "teacher" in her palm.

"TEACHER" THROUGH YEARS

From that day onward, through all the years, Miss Sullivan was "Teacher" to her noted pupil.

While at Radcliffe, where Helen completed the course and was graduated with honors, they met John Macy, a young instructor at Harvard, who afterwards became noted as a critic and essayist. On May 2, 1905, he and Anne Sullivan were married at Wrentham, Mass.

The union in no way was allowed to hinder "Teacher's" work for Helen and down through the years they shared honors whenever the pupil could persuade her beloved mentor to accept a share of them.

Chiefs of Soviet In Battle for Stalin Power

Copyright, 1936, by International News Service

Paris, Oct. 20 (INS)—That "chaotic conditions" prevail in Moscow while prominent figures wrangle for power was the tenor of confidential advices received in diplomatic quarters here today, tending to bear out persistent reports—denied by the Soviets—that Joseph Stalin is gravely ill.

According to reports here, a clique led by V. M. Molotov and Klementi Voroshilov is trying to take over power, ousting M. I. Kalinin, L. M. Kaganovich and other Stalin favorites.

Partial corroboration of this reported struggle for Stalin's mantle is seen in the sudden transfer of Henry G. Yagoda from the powerful post of chief of the Soviet secret police to the unimportant commissarship of posts and telegraphs.

He was supplanted by N. I. Yezkoff, marking the first time that an outsider has ever commanded the OGPU.

Molotov is now president of the council of people's commissars and Voroshilov is commissar for defense—head of the Red army of 1,300,000 men.

Kalinin is president of the union central executive committee and Kaganovich is one of the chief Communist party officials and Stalin's right-hand man.

It is not believed here that followers of Leon Trotsky are playing an important part in the reported fight, which is said to be centering in the party and the political bureau of the party, of which all the contending principles are members.

Stalin's condition is repeatedly reported here as serious. He is, according to diplomatic reports, suffering from a long-standing heart ailment.

STRIKE Halted, Says BETTE

'STARS WOULD QUIT IF I WON'

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 20 — Bette Davis, American film star who attempted unsuccessfully to break her contract with Warner Brothers, asserted today:

"If I had won, lots of people in Hollywood would just walk out."

"Seventy-five per cent of the contracts are like mine," she declared in support of her attorney's contention the American film company made her a virtual "slave."

"It's difficult for people outside the film industry to realize that actresses earn every penny of their salaries," commented Miss Davis, who yesterday was enjoined in King's Bench division from appearing in motion pictures or any other performances in England except for Warner Brothers.

"We do not tell what a hell of a life it is because it would destroy the glamour, and glamour is the mainstay of our business," she declared.

The blond film star, who characterized herself as "nearly heartbroken" over the court decision, planned to confer with her lawyers concerning possible appeal from the decision of Justice Sir George Branson.

"One thing is certain," Miss Davis said definitely. "I am not going to cut off my nose to spite my face. I am set on a film career, and if it means going back to Warners' and being pleasant about it—why, then, I'm quite prepared to go."

(Sir William Jowitt, counsel for the film star, described her as under a "life sentence" in arguments before the court. Miss Davis was characterized as a "naughty little girl who wants more money" in statements by Sir Patrick Hastings, legal representative of Warner Brothers.)

How Living Costs Soar

Luce Cites Deal Effect in Homes

To be as well off as when the New Deal started, the man or woman who in 1932 got $1200 a year should now be receiving $1600.

It is costing the housewife $1.72 today for food products which could be purchased for $1.00 in 1933.

People are paying 25 per cent more in cents than they did four years ago, and further advances are likely because of the anticipated housing shortage.

These and other pertinent facts on the extent that the New Deal has cut into the family pocketbook are being disclosed in a series of addresses by former Congressman Robert Luce of Waltham, the first of which was delivered today.

"Soon after Mr. Roosevelt became President, he started to raise prices; that is, the cost of living," Luce declared. "His purpose was to take money from all the people in order to give it to part of the people, on the theory that this would make everybody more prosperous.

"Let us look at the results

"Food, clothing and housing are the three great necessities of life. For food we spend twice as much as for either clothes or housing. It takes about two-fifths of the income of the average family. Averages, however, are deceitful. Here they do not give the real picture.

"Food takes about one-sixteenth of an income of $50,000 a year, about a quarter of a $3000-a-year income, nearly if not quite one-half of a small wage earner's income.

"To find just what has taken place in the industrial city where I live I hunted up in our public library a copy of the Waltham News-Tribune of March 3, 1933, the Friday before Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated. I compared the food advertisements of our provision dealers with those of last Friday, October 16. In each case, I took the lowest price offered that day and I found the figures to be:

	March 3 1933	Oct. 16 1936
Fores of Spring Lamb	.07	.15
Lamb Legs and Loin	.15	.17
Pork Loin	.10	.27
Ham	.16½	.29
Bacon	.14	.19
Frankforts	.06½	.13
Porterhouse	.25	.45
Face of rump	.15	.23
Beef Undercut	.12½	.25
Pot Roast	.10	.17
Corned Brisket	.07½	.19
Smoked Shoulder	.08	.19
Hamburg Steak	.06½	.19
Chicken	.18	.27
Butter	.19	.35

"Meat products make up most of this list and it might be urged, therefore, that the figures do not fairly portray the rise in food. However, the typical family spends nearly three-fifths of its food money on meat products, butter and milk. The rise in the matter of other foods has not been so great, but taking them all together the increase has been two-fifths and one-half.

"Flour comes next to meat, usually getting a little under one-tenth of the food expenditure of the typical family. In the three years from September, 1932, to September, 1935, an advance of one and six-tenths cents a loaf added nearly $100,000,000 to the bread bill of the nation.

"More would have been added had not the price rise from a national average of 6.7 cents a pound loaf to 8.3 cents cut half a billion from the number of loaves eaten by the American people.

WORST YET TO COME

"The worst is yet to come. Army quartermasters who buy millions of dollars worth of food for the Civilian Conservation Corps predicts that where it costs about 45 cents this summer to feed a CCC recruit each day, next spring it will cost 55 cents."

The former congressman declared on the subject of housing that about one-half the people own their own homes and after tax, repairs, interest and other items are added up, the cost figures about the same as the rent where the house is hired.

Throughout the nation, he said, figures for rent show a jump of about a quarter over what it was three and one-half years ago. Clothing, taking about one-eighth of income, he further declared, has increased about one-fifth.

ELY CHARGES FAITH BROKEN BY DEAL

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 20—Former Governor oseph B. Ele of Massachusetts joined with former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby here last night before 3000 Jeffersonian Democrats and Republicans in an attack on President Roosevelt.

Mr. Ely charged that the New Deal had broken faith with the American people and formed a huge political bureaucracy.

The former Massachusetts executive took the NRA and the AAA as two of the New Deal's agencies which showed the direction in which President Roosevelt and his administration is headed in governmental theory and outlined their disastrous results. He assailed the administration of relief.

Instead of carrying out the relief program as outlined in the Democratic platform, providing for the use of Federal credit for the aid of states and allowing them to administer the money, ex-Governor Ely charged "a tremendous centralized bureaucracy was set up in Washington to administer billions of dollars as they saw fit."

WASTE CITED

"The more they spent the better," he declared. "The folly and corruption of this spending is a stench in the nostrils of the American people. Seven billion dollars cannot be distributed without some of it getting into the right hands, but a tremendous percentage has been completely wasted expenditure.

"This administration began this course of public spending with the affirmation that 'we must not play politics with human misery.' But now only New Dealers need apply.

"The relief rolls have increased. Those receiving government compensation have increased. This is so in spite of the fact that business has improved. This inconsistency is the surest evidence of the waste and smugness of the whole undertaking.

"How about the triple A? What has that done for the country? Under the Agricultural Act, imports of farm products into the United States show the following increases between 1932 and 1935.

GRAIN IMPORTS RISE

"Under an act which was to increase the market of the American farmer and raise the prices of his produce, the imports of wheat into the United States were 27,439,000 bushels in 1935 and only 3000 bushels in 1932. In 1932 we importd 344,000 bushels of corn, but in 1935 we imported 43,000,000 bushels of corn; in 1932 the United States imported 59,000 bushels of oats, but under this great planned economy of Mr. Wallace, in 1935 we imported 10,107,000 bushels; in 1932 we imported no barley, but in 1935 we imported 4,840,000 bushels; in 1932 we imported no rye, but in 1935 our imports amounted to 9,643,000 bushels.

"Because of the administration crop-reduction program, all of the imports became a necessity. These increased bushels of farm imports should have been bushels for the American farmer, but the foreign producer raised and sold them.

"The foreign producer profited by the artificial prices that the New Deal had created, and the American cansumer paid for it—paid for it in the increased prices and through taxation.

"This waste of public funds and the mortgage upon the future of the American worker, serious as these things are, do not strike the root of the present difficulty in supporting the re-election of the President.

"Bad as it is, wasteful as it is, demoralizing at it is—all of that may be corrected and overcome if the American system of government remains upon its traditional foundations.

"These facts raise the issue of this campaign. No amount of honeyed words can change that issue. Let no one fool himself that this is not a desperate battle. Unless it is won at the election the struggle must go on with ever-increasing intensity and bitterness.

DEAL WEAKENS FAITH

"This program has weakened the faith of men not only in our government but in our future business possibilities. It has weakened the morale of America. It cannot be otherwise.

"This is the system which is slowly eating the vitals of France. This is the system which destroyed the old Germany and resulted in the inevitable dictatorship of a Fascist government. This is the system which has ruined Spain. This is the system which prevails in Russia.

"England and the United States stood alone as the last vestiges of a real democracy. We are on the brink of the precipice. Our reliance is upon the sound judgment, the honest judgment, the honest intention of the American people and their love and affection for its institutions."

The injured youth's two companions escaped on foot.

What Landon Stands For: Faith in America

GOVERNOR LANDON has an abiding faith in the wisdom of the founders of the American system of government.

He believes the authors of American independence who aspired to set up a government in perpetuation of the principle of human liberty were divinely inspired.

He believes they succeeded in doing this, and that the great and splendid country we have today is the realization of what they visualized.

Governor Landon accepts it as his duty, and that of every citizen, to preserve and safeguard this heritage of American freedom.

This means, in his belief, unceasing devotion to the principles that made America a free nation.

He does not believe his country can remain free, if it ever consents to the supplanting of our basic law, our courts, our constitutional framework of government by alien theories, which demand surrender of liberty.

GOVERNOR LANDON resists, with all the strength of his faith in American institutions, the defeatist attitude that America has gone as far as it can as a free country.

He stands for unswerving support of the Constitution of the United States, and holds any enemy of that bulwark of American independence to be an enemy of a free people.

Landon Charges CCC Boys "Led Down Blind Alley"

major address tonight at the Coliseum.

He will remain overnight in Los Angeles, leaving at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow for a fast dash back across the southwest.

His itinerary calls for a "rear porch" stop at Phoenix, Ariz., at 9:30 tomorrow night, before reaching Oklahoma City at 10:30 Friday morning. He will remain in Oklahoma City until 2 p. m., before resuming his journey for a major address in Indianapolis Saturday night. He will reach Indianapolis at 9:15 Saturday morning, spending the day there.

His other speaking dates include Philadelphia, October 26; Pittsburgh, October 27; New York City, October 28 and 29, and St. Louis, October 31.

It was at Barstow, his first stop in California, that Landon promised to reorganize the Civilian Conservation Corps, so as to include educational facilities to fit the youths for places in private life.

URGES CCC SHIFT

He recalled how he had prompted Senator Arthur Capper (R) of Kansas to offer an amendment modifying the original CCC act so as to permit work by the youth on state lands. The original act permitted work only on the federal domain.

"Once I am elected President," he said, "I will do everything within my power not only to continue the CCC but to improve the organization. It shall be my purpose to make it far more effective than it yet has been, both for the young men who compose it and for the public.

"The present administration has forgotten the original purpose of the CCC. It is threatening to lead the several hundred thousand young Americans comprising the corps down a blind alley.

"The purpose of the CCC is not to provide permanent occupations. Rather, it is to tide its members over until they can find real jobs with genuine opportunities for themselves. It should not only build bodies but furnish education, so that the boys will be able to make up for lost time when they do find their places in private life. In the meantime, the nation draws dividends not only in conservation work completed but in better citizenship.

POLITICIANS RULE

"The most serious criticism to be levelled at the CCC as it now operates is that the politicians have taken over the administrative jobs. The merit system should prevail in the CCC fully as much as in the regular departments of the government.

"Full opportunity for advancement should be given the CCC boys themselves. It would develop their initiative and it would give them that priceless experience that only comes from assuming authority fairly won.

"The CCC idea has in it great opportunities for lasting good. I promise you to realize them."

Landon expressed a confident note in all his speeches. It was no longer "If I am elected President." It was "when I am President."

He made a half dozen speeches in New Mexico, topped by a prepared address at Albuquerque, where he charged the administration with making agriculture "the football of politics."

He chided the President on breaking his 1932 campaign pledge to give farmers "the full benefit of the domestic market," declaring administration policies had turned the domestic market over to foreign producers. He said farm imports in 1935 would have required 20,000,000 acres for their domestic production.

He pledged a "common sense and practical long term program of conservation," new reciprocal trading negotiations that would not penalize American producers, and farm benefits "limited to the family type farm." He said all this could be accomplished with a balanced federal budget.

DISPUTE GROWS IN VANDENBERG AIR 'DEBATE'

Washington, Oct 20 (US)—Further repercussions in the conflict between the Columbia Broadcasting system and the Republican national committee over the company's abrupt halting of a speech by Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg (R.) of Michigan, are taking form here.

Commissioner Eugene O. Sykes, of the Federal Radio Commission, questioned specifically as to whether Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, has protested, when it was reported Sykes had promised Hastings an investigation, replied:

"To begin with, I have no idea whether Senator Hastings or any one else has filed a complaint with the commission. I have not seen him nor has he communicated with me.

"I have seen no complaint and do not know whether there is any such document in the commission's office.

"I was working in my office all day and saw no one about this matter."

Hastings made public at his home in Wilmington, Del., a telegram he sent to the Columbia Broadcasting Company regarding an insurance policy taken out by Columbia through an insurance firm with which James Roosevelt, the President's son, was connected.

To this telegram the Columbia organization replied in a wire to Hastings. The telegram said:

"Two years ago the Columbia Broadcasting System decided to take out group insurance for the benefit of its employes.

"In August 1934, this business was placed with the Travelers Life Insurance Company and was solicited by that company as well as through their accredited agents, Roosevelt and Sargent.

"The plan jointly submitted by these men appealed to us as more satisfactory than any other proposition we received. James Roosevelt participated in this solicitation.

"We are using our best efforts not to be drawn into a partisan political controversy.

"We are trying only to enforce our non-partisan policies but since your wire intimates there are those who would imply scandal we must point out to you that sons of the President of the United States are entitled to engage in private business as well as any other private citizen and we deplore any effort to read anything sinister into the fact that one of them was in the insurance firm through which we placed business."

Goldman Refutes Curley's Charge 'Lodge Hated Jews'

Answering an attack made upon the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's attitude to the Jewish race, Harris Goldman, prominent Lynn attorney, today, in a letter to Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., declared that "the older generation of Jews will never forget the kind and courteous treatment and co-operation they always received."

"I just have had brought to my attention the astounding statement of Governor James M. Curley that your grandfather, the late Henry Cabot Lodge, 'hated the Jews,'" the letter read.

"As a resident of this section for 35 years, most of which were spent in Lynn, I became very well acquainted with the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

"When the atrocities against the Jews occurred in Russia years ago, the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge worked diligently and faithfully to secure passports for the afflicted, so that they could find a haven of refuge in this country, and later when I planned a trip to Russia on a mission of mercy for a group of Boston Jews, after the Russian consul had issued an ultimatum denying me a visa to my passport, the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge called on the Russian ambassador in person, demanded and received the necessary visa and delivered it to me.

"The older generation of Jews in Lynn will never forget the kind and courteous treatment and co-operation received from the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and the debt of gratitude they owe him for introducing the resolution on the Balfour Treaty. I shall always bless his memory as a true friend of the Jews."

SABATH AIDE'S AMOSKEAG FEE QUIZ BLOCKED

Arthur Black, referee in bankruptcy, sitting as master in Federal court today, refused to permit Peter C. Borre, chief counsel for the Sabath Committee, to question counsel interested in the collection of fees totalling $100,762 in connection with the liquidation of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company.

Borre got the floor after Black had asked G. Rodman Peabody, an attorney, to explain the routine in the settlement of fees in such cases as now pending, and asked if it would be permissible to question each counsel as to the nature of their bills for services.

"No, there will be no questioning," said Black.

"All right," countered Borre, "the Sabath committee will summon counsel and conduct an inquiry of its own."

Before the hearing could proceed, however, Charles Greene of Lynn, who owns some stock in the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., arose to ask a question, and had no sooner proceeded when Black told him to "please be seated."

Attorney Peabody proceeded to explain the routine to action after Master Black had stated that he (Black) had asked counsel, who filled the courtroom, to appear before him at the hearing and give their opinions on their various applications for fees.

Citing the provisions for lawyer's feets as embodied in Section 77B of the Congressional Bankruptcy Act, Attorney Peabody said he had prepared a memoranda of 35 pages touching on different cases.

Getting down to the counsel fees pending before Master Black and referring to the interest derived from funds of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, Attorney Peabody gave as his opinion that it would be best to take up the bills presented by counsel in four classes, first the Bondholders Committee; next bills that ought not to be paid by creditors; third, one bill belonging to the Old Colony Trust Company, trustee of indenture; fourth, bills of attorneys Hale and Worthington.

WIDOW'S TORSO OFF QUINCY, FLIER SAYS

pany when she vanished September 19, would also be found slain.

The search was admiddely for two bodies.

The flier who reported sighting the head and torso was Edward Harney of Holbrook road, North Quincy, who took his plane out of Bayside airport, Hingham, this mornin gto aid in the search following Davidson's report, which convinced detectives he had actually sighted the long-sought remains.

MORE PLANES TO AID

Harney flew over the shore for about an hour, landing to report and direct the searching boats. He said he sighted the object from an altitude of 300 feet so could not be sure of its nature, but said he believed he had seen what the boats were seeking.

A coast guard plane from Salem and a navy plane from Squantum were expected to join the searchers. The Point Allerton coast guard surfboat and many smaller craft containing Quincy and Weymouth police and volunteers of a water posse participated in the grim hunt.

That Lyons was slain, as was Mrs. Asquith, on the night of Saturday, Sept. 19, was the theory of investigators today.

They based it on new evidence definitely indicating that Lyons went to Mrs. Asquith's Weymouth cottage in fear of his life and that, soon after his arrival, he left again in the company of a man.

FIND BAG, GRANITE SLAB

Opposite Rock Island, shortly after daybreak this morning, two Hough's Neck youths, Charles H. Gray and Vincent Menz, made a find of seeming importance.

On the mud flats 200 yards off Sandy Point, in the Germantown section, they found a burlap potato bag in which was a soapstone slab weighing about three pounds, and a birch tree leaf. The bag was of the type in which one of Mrs. Asquith's legs was found. The slab, police said, may have been used to weight the bag down in deep water.

Of particular significance was the leaf, because the region in which Mrs. Asquith's cottage is located is known as "The Birches." The boys also found a sugar bag.

Rowing across Rock Island cove late yesterday the Davidson boy was horrified to see just below the surface of the water the head and upper body of a woman.

Long hair was matted about the head, partially concealing the features. The arms and torso were unclad and blanched ghastly white by their long immersion.

Sickened and terrified by the sight, young Davidson hurried home. Reluctant to shock his mother, Mrs. Maude Proctor, he told his story to his chum, Charles Kelty of Quincy.

Kelty hurried at once to Quincy police headquarters.

Those in charge of the investigation had good reason, they said, to believe that somewhere below the placid surface of the cove they would find the bound and weighted body of War Veteran Lyons, unaccountably missing since the alleged murder night, September 19, when Oscar Victor Bartolini, Quincy handyman now held in $50,000 bail as a "material witness," took him by auto to Mrs. Asquith's Alpine road, Weymouth, cottage.

TRAPPING DILLINGER MOB -:- By Melvin Purvis

Gang Slips G-Men At Little Bohemia

Melvin Purvis, chief of U. S. Department of Justice "G-men," in yesterday's installment of his own story in the Boston Evening American, told how he traded shots with "Baby Face" Nelson. In today's absorbing narrative the captor of John Dillinger tells how the bandit gang fled "Little Bohemia."

By MELVIN PURVIS

CHAPTER III

Melvin Purvis

We continued to maintain our cover of the Little Bohemia Lodge, but it became more and more evident that all of the gangsters had escaped before the proprietor left the house.

We searched the grounds and in the garages we found the Buick coupe and Ford sedan belonging to the gang.

Both were fully packed with luggage, and contained the gang's machine-guns, bullet-proof vests, rifles, tear-gas, and ammunition.

We then started to gas the house by shooting gas shells at the windows. Two of our men in an automobile rushed up to the front of the house while we covered it with machine-guns to protect their advance.

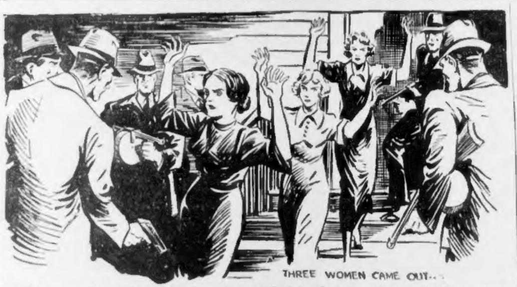
They threw gas bombs into the front door. Everyone of us surrounding the place was gassed by our own tear-gas, blown toward us by the wind.

After a time, we heard a woman's voice in the house crying out, "We will come out if you will stop firing." We replied, "Come out and bring everyone with you with your hands up."

Three women came out. They said they did not know whether anyone else was in the house, and continued questioning failed to break down their statements. These were the women with the Dillinger gang.

A group of six special agents rushed the first floor of the lodge, becoming gassed by the tear-gas; we rushed the second floor and then ran out and put our heads speedily under the pump. When we had recovered from the first gassing we rushed the cellar and the top floor.

After a thorough search, we found to our chagrin that every one of the gangsters had escaped. Three women and a much shot up house, which was later to prove of great financial benefit to its proprietor, were all we had to show for our efforts.



THREE WOMEN CAME OUT..

Artist's conception of G-men's futile raid on Little Bohemia Lodge. Net result: three women—but no Dillinger.

During the night while we were covering the place, a car approached and turned into the lane. There it stopped, its driver apparently suspecting that something was wrong.

We approached the car and commanded the occupants to get out with their hands up. They immediately began backing out; we endeavored to disable the car by machine-gun fire into the radiator. The car sped on.

Some months later we learned that its driver was Pat Reilly, a former mascot of the Minneapolis baseball team, who had joined up with this gang to take a minor part. His companion was Pat Cherrington, a former night club dancer and entertainer.

These two had been to St. Paul, Minn., for the purpose of obtaining more ammunition. Pat Cherrington, upon apprehension, had a slight scratch between her eyes, caused by flying glass as a result of the firing upon the car in which she and Reilly were riding that night.

Hid in Icy Fields

They escaped, and as the story later came to me, Pat Reilly hid out in the icy fields all night and finally made his way back to St. Paul.

The story of the battle had spread rapidly over the countryside. As the dawn was breaking a posse had approached. They wanted to join in the battle, but the fighting was over.

Washington had been on the telephone all night. The Director had been pacing the floor and had been in almost constant communication with the Special Agent who had been sent to the telephone at the home of a resident which local people called the Central.

Final report was made to him early that morning and plans were made for the investigations which would necessarily follow in that section.

In small groups we went at different times to have breakfast at Mr. Voss's house. Most of us didn't feel like eating. A group was selected to remain at Little Bohemia to complete the investigation, and the rest of us returned to our headquarters.

We soon learned that Dillinger and two of his gang had appeared at Ed Mitchell's Rest Lake Resort, about two miles north of Little Bohemia, where they tore the telephone from the wall, threatened to kill Mitchell and his family, and demanded a car.

JOHN HAMILTON

Mitchell told them his car had not been used for some months and probably would not run, but that his hired-man had a truck. On the way to get this the gangsters saw the Ford coupe belonging to Robert Johnson, a tenant of the Resort.

They forced Johnson to drive them about 35 miles across country to Park Falls where they allowed him to get out, and then sped away in his car.

There followed expressions of great dissatisfaction at the utter failure of this raid. While waiting at the airport for the plane to be warmed up to take me back to Chicago, I overheard several people talking about the raid in an extremely critical vein.

Wild Rumors

Stories began to circulate; wild rumors as to what had happened at Little Bohemia floated in the air.

Large black headlines appeared in the newspapers.

"URGE PURVIS OUSTER."
"DEMAND PURVIS QUIT IN DILLINGER FIASCO."

The raid had failed. At Little Bohemia we had probably the largest aggregation of modern desperadoes ever bottled up in one place. Never again would we have such a great opportunity as was afforded us there.

There had seemed no avenue by which they could escape and all we had to show for our battle were three terrified women.

The events of the night ran constantly through my mind; I relived every moment of the raid. I could see that we had failed, but I could not see that we had failed through our own fault, or how the affair could have been planned in the time available in any other way.

Perhaps I was too close to the picture to see the fine points of it. I offered my resignation.

It was not accepted.

Somehow, I wasn't thinking about the various opinions advanced about the raid. My thoughts were of the loss of Special Agent Carter Baum, and the other serious casualties at Little Bohemia.

That young special agent was my friend; I thought of his boyish ways and lovable character.

There was the family of this man who had lost his life in line of duty—Mrs. Baum and her two little children. What would happen to them? I thought of the inadequacy of the government's support for this family.

3 Women Taken

The three women taken at Little Bohemia were Marie Conforti, Homer Van Meter's girl; Helen Gillis, wife of Baby-face Nelson, and Jean Delaney, Tommy Carroll's sweetheart. They were taken to Madison, Wisconsin, where they were charged in Federal Court with harboring members of this gang at Little Bohemia.

Each of them received a probationary sentence of one year and one day.

Many people believe they had been placed on probation in the hope that they would lead law enforcement officials to the hide-outs of their gangster lovers. I am not aware of the actual reason.

Personally, I should have preferred that they be sent to prison, because of my belief in the policy of eliminating all known contacts of gangsters, making it necessary for them to form new ones not so well-known to them or so trustworthy.

Shortly after these women were released on probation, each of them rejoined her gangster sweetheart. Jean Delaney was with Tommy Carroll when he was killed by police on June 7, 1934, at Waterloo, Iowa, while resisting arrest.

Helen Gillis was with Baby-face Nelson when he met his death on November 27, 1934, at Barrington, Illinois.

Marie Conforti had rejoined Homer Van Meter, but she was not with him when he was killed on August 22, 1934, by St. Paul, Minnesota, police.

Little Bohemia as it stands today is considerably changed. Before the battle there were no bullet holes in the walls and windows. Now there are bullet holes and they are carefully preserved, as a sort of mecca for morbid curiosity seekers.

The proprietor of Little Bohemia has, I am told, established a sort of curio room which contains some of the bullets fired in that battle, a photograph of John Dillinger, and other articles which go to mark a spot to be remembered in the dark pages of the history of American crimes and criminals.

The story of the battle is told and retold and the empty shells of the cartridges fired have had a ready market.

The luggage of the Dillinger gang which was discovered in the two automobiles left at Little Bohemia contained the instruments of gang warfare—machine-guns, rifles, pistols, bullet-proof vests and ammunition, together with a large number of suits, shirts and other articles of clothing.

The gang had already packed and were ready to leave. Some months later all the articles of clothing were sent back to the proprietor of Little Bohemia. Some felt that possibly he might have a claim of some sort on them in view of the sojourn of the Dillinger gang at his resort.

My own feeling was that he would have and would make no claim for these articles, but these considerations occupied very little of my concern at the time. I am told, however, that later these articles became a part of his murderous relics.

The gangsters at Little Bohemia were John Dillinger, John Hamilton, an old prison pal of Dillinger who had escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., prison on September 26, 1933, and who had been his companion in many a robbery; Homer Van Meter, the so-called front man, or "caser" for the gang; Tommy Carroll, a not so widely known member, but who often helped when an extra man was needed for a job; Baby-face Nelson, whose ruling passion was murder, and Pat Reilly.

They were all dangerous men and word had leaked through from gangland that each had said he would never be taken alive. Only one of them was Pat Reilly was captured and sent to prison; the others died by gunfire.

Soldiers Protest Reds on Radio

Renewed opposition to the ruling of the Federal Communications Commission, forcing radio stations throughout the country to carry the talks of the Communist party, piles up daily as the public is becoming more and more aroused.

John J. Coleman, World War veteran, who was wounded and gassed and hospitalized for 28 months wired:

"The American nation, as a whole, is fearful of any deviation from the principles and doctrines laid down by the signers. The Constitution has withstood the tempests and storms of many years and still remains expressive of the will of the people in guiding domestic affairs.

"There is nothing in the whole life of America that is suggestive of tyranny or of oppression. There is nothing communistic in her ideals; there is no place upon her soil for the anarchist and for those of similar belief to exercise their pernicious views. Yet, the Federal Communications Commission permits the Communist party to speak and expand by the medium of radio. I cannot see how such a ruling could be made within the limits of the Constitution."

Frederick H. Rising, assistant adjutant general of the Massachusetts Department of the Grand Army of the Republic, said:

"Communism deprives 160,000,000 Russians of the right to worship, free speech, free press, and public assembly and protest.

"The Bill of Rights gives you the right to talk all you wish, and criticize public officials for their acts. It does not give you the right to advocate destruction of life, property or government.

"Many of these people who howl for free speech are just sheep following a leader. They all should be stifled, especially from the air."

This Safe, External Treatment

Helps END A COLD Quicker

The 3-Minute VapoRub Massage

Massage VapoRub briskly on the throat, chest and back (between and below the shoulder blades). Then spread it thick over the chest and cover with warmed cloth.

Almost before you finish rubbing, VapoRub starts to bring relief two ways at once—two direct ways:

1. Through the Skin. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice or plaster.

2. Medicated Vapors. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by body heat, are breathed in for hours—about 18 times a minute—direct to the irritated air passages. This combined poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation—helps break congestion.

During the night, VapoRub keeps right on working. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Avoids Risk of Stomach Upsets

This safe, external treatment cannot possibly upset the stomach, as constant internal "dosing" is so apt to do. It can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

'BROWDER TRUE TO MOSCOW'-- MSGR. SHEEN

New York, Oct. 20—Unmasking Earl Browder as a true servant of Moscow, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, of Catholic University of Washington, D. C., for the first time revealed details of the Communist presidential nominee's program for sovietizing America.

Msgr. Sheen, in a radio address broadcast from Station WINS over a state network, searchingly analyzed Browder's recent statement that he does not take orders from Moscow and pointed out:

1. That Browder had attended the Seventh Congress of the Communist international at Moscow to which only verified members of the party are permitted entrance.

2. That he not only attended but acted as chairman of the Congress at which it was stated that the aim of the Communist International is the establishment of a dictatorship of the proletariat by revolution.

3. That he did the very things which the Congress of the International Communist party suggested for America, recommended the disguise and the formation of a farmer-labor party and a league against war and Fascism.

4. That Browder urges the overthrow of the United States government by inciting mutiny in the army and navy.

Msgr. Sheen, scathingly attacking the American Communist party's link with Russia, referred to Browder's book "What is Communism?" saying:

"To convince you that this book was written as a result of the seventh congress of the Third International, and that American Communism is therefore inspired by Moscow, let me cite this convincing proof.

"The Third International publishes an official monthly magazine in half a dozen different languages, the content being practically the same in all. I am quoting from the June issue of the Communist International 1936 English edition. 'Comrade Browder's book is an excellent contribution to the ideological and agitational work of the Communist party in the United States. The book may be considered a direct result of the work performed by the Communist International under the leadership of Comrade Dimitrov.'

"Now if Mr. Browder means what he writes, that he does not take orders from Moscow, then we challenge him to repudiate Dimitrov and Stalin of Russia.

"If Browder takes no orders from Moscow, why did he go there? Why did he do what Moscow asked?"

Publisher Urges Ban On Reds

Determined to devote all his energy and financial resources to a campaign for a federal law that would deny free speech to Communists, William Griffin, publisher of the New York Sunday Enquirer, was here today planning to interest Massachusetts voters in a bill that would bar Communistic propaganda from newspapers, mails and radio.

Back from a recent jaunt through Europe, Griffin addressed the Charitable Irish Society at the Copley-Plaza last night and described the methods used by Reds in France, Spain and England.

In each case, he said, their success was due to the government's indifference to a distinction between the right to free speech and the non-right for those who abuse it.

LAUDS HEARST PAPERS

He asserted that recognition of Soviet Russia is the first step toward inviting trouble in any country.

In describing his proposed bill today Griffin said:

"Citizens in many states are paying money out of their pockets to keep a subversive party on the ballot. They pay money so that many thousands of Reds can register a vote of disapproval against our government."

He praised the anti-Communistic policy of the Hearst newspapers.

"William Randolph Hearst is one of the few Americans whose words carry tremendous weight in the old world today. This fact was impressed upon me everywhere I went in Europe.

NEW STRONG NAVY

"It is a pity that his sage advice was not listened to by our government during the World War.

"A country that wants to keep strict neutrality has to have a strong navy to keep that neutrality. Mr. Hearst advocated 'be prepared' as far back as 1916, and if we had heeded his advice, perhaps the contemporary history of Europe and the United States would be on a much happier course."

WOMEN IN MAD RUSH FORCE MEN TO DEFEND MADRID

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Oct. 20—A vast new army, called out by shouting bands of women, poured out of Madrid's factories, shops and offices today as the wind carried the boom of besieging Fascist artillery into the capital's very streets.

A thousand housewives and servants, shrieking their frenzied demands for a militant defense of Madrid, ran through the business section and dashed back and forth in side streets, waving shopping baskets and calling upon anti-Fascists to abandon their benches and desks and take up arms.

REBEL GUNS ROAR

In a resolute reply, the workers poured from office buildings and plants, big and small. Arms were passed out hastily and the government set itself for a great massed thrust to carry the battle to the enemy, already virtually within striking distance of Madrid.

As the workers fell in step with the capital's militia reserve, a shifting wind carried the crash of cannonade plainly into the city from the hills in the west and the plains to the south.

On both fronts the Fascists were well within a 20-mile radius of Madrid.

The ominous echoes electrified the populace.

Plumbers and steamfitters marched beside storekeepers and white-collared accountants.

The women, shouting themselves hoarse, ran madly past, hunting down new recruits.

AZANA INSPECTS ARMY

At last, it seemed, Madrid was fully awake to the danger of invasion.

President Manuel Azana, who motored yesterday to Barcelona with three of his ministers, inspected government lines on the Aragon front.

In the South, at strategic Aranjuez, the government opened a vicious drive to press the enemy back from important rail junctions.

The embattled Socialist forces were reported to have "withstood" bitter insurgent attacks near Aranjuez, 25 miles northeast of Toledo.

President Azana, his three ministers and a military aide, arrived in Barcelona last night.

Reds in Murder Orgy Kill 10,000, Says Woman

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (US)—Orgies of mass butchery—a flaming pit in which men, women and children were mowed down with machine guns, soaked in gasoline and their bodies cremated—

Others burned alive—

An execution toll of more than 10,000—

These and other stories of nightmare scenes of madness in the Spanish civil war were brought to San Francisco today by two prominent socialites, arriving aboard the French liner Washington.

The couple, first Spanish war refugees to reach San Francisco, are Mr. and Mrs. Louis De Laveaga Cebrian, wealthy members of old Madrid and California families.

An eyewitness account of appalling mass execution by "Red" forces in Madrid, told her by a man who saw them, but whose name she guarded because of the peril of death, was recounted by Mrs. Cebrian. She said:

"This friend told me he was at Casa de Campo, the former chief execution ground, and saw a group of about 100 persons huddled about pitifully in a sort of declivity in the ground.

"Machine guns were trained on the rebels—men, women and children—from all angles.

"He saw in the midst of them a tiny girl, clinging terrified to her mother's skirts. Nearby, her father was kneeling in prayer.

"Machine guns fired into the group killed only part of the cluster of humans outright. The Reds had to save ammunition.

"Others, horribly wounded, fell to the ground, and horrible bedlam of screams and moans arose.

"Then, up to the edge of the pit was backed a huge gasoline truck, which sprayed gasoline through a hose upon the dead and wounded in the pit.

"The gasoline was ignited and the living and dead were set afire.

"This was formerly a daily occurrence, but the Reds are conserving gasoline now and the wounded are just left to die in agony."

Already, she said, such mass executions have reached the appalling total of 10,000, and they average about 100 victims a day.

Soviet All Set to Rush Guns to Spain Reds

Moscow, Oct. 20 (INS)—"Rush ammunition to Spain, unless Fascist intervention ceases," became a nation-wide cry today at workers' rallies, held under government sponsorship.

The Soviet Union's withdrawal from the European non-intervention pact was predicted for this week, when a definite program of official assistance for the Spanish leftists will be put into effect, according to authoritative sources.

LONG WARNED AT TAX HEARING

Complaining of "Inquisition" methods, Rodney W. Long, head of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, today was threatened with contempt proceedings at the hearing before the special commission on taxation and public expenditures.

Members of the group were questioning him on circulation of a petition seeking a constitutional amendment limiting real estate taxes in the state to $25 per $1000 valuation.

Long was warned of "not conducting yourself properly" by Senator William A. Davenport of Greenfield, chairman of the commission, who had subjected Long to severe cross-examination on motives for cirulating the petition. questioning censured the real estate head for "drafting money from the public."

"Anybody who contributed to circulation of the petition did so voluntarily," Long replied.

Norman A. MacDonald, a member of the commission, objected to Davenport's manner of cross-examination, declaring Long's procedure in circulating the petitions was "perfectly legal."

"I agree with you," Davenport retorted, "up to the point of getting fonds from the people to promote what he is trying to do."

Long charged that the commission "is deliberately blocking an attempt to circulate the petition seeking a $25 tax limit." He said his organization hopes to secure 100,000 signatures to the petition.

Davenport, however, asserted the legislative committee on constitutional law had recommended a $20 tax limit, which is $5 per $1,000 valuation less than the figure advocated by the real estate exchange. He added it was "not necessary" to expend money to convince people of the need for a reduction in real estate taxes.

Attorney John L. Murphy, one of Governor Curley's appointees to the commission, assailed Long as "the most impudent, deceitful and aggressively incompetent witness to appear before the commission."

Long was dismissed, subject to recall as a witness.

Browder in 'Jail City' But Free

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 20 (AP)—Earl Browder, Communist candidate for president, who was arrested when he arrived here three weeks ago to deliver a campaign speech, returned today and went to a hotel unmolested by authorities.

Two policemen were among the crowd of approximately 50 persons at the depot when Browder stepped from the train but they merely eyed the Communist candidate while he shook hands with an elderly man clad in blue denim and then posed for photographers.

Browder said he plans to deliver a campaign speech over a local radio station (WBOW) at 11 p. m. (Central Standard Time).

He said plans for a public meeting earlier in the evening were dependent upon a court hearing this afternoon. Attorneys representing him filed a petition in Superior Court yesterday asking that authorities be restrained from interfering with Browder's speech. Judge Albert T. Owens is to conduct a hearing later today.

Browder left the depot in a taxicab with Seymour Waldman, who had accompanied him here from New Yoork, and Ira Latamer of Chicago, secretary of the the American Civil Liberties Union, who had boarded the train at Indianapolis.

3 LOWELL GIRLS GET 5 YEARS IN THEFT

FIND PRISON NO CURE

Commissioner Lyman went to Sherborn a few days later and interviewed the girls, along with some 30 other inmates.

One whom he interviewed just before he talked with the girls in the "milk bottle" case, it was learned, was a woman serving a similar sentence, five years and a day—for second degree murder.

Commissioner Lyman and Dr. Miriam Van Waters, head of Sherborn reformatory, studied the family histories of each girl and the circumstances of the particular offense and both were convinced that the case represented a social problem that imprisonment would aggravate rather than solve.

Today the commissioner placed the facts before Governor Curley with a recommendation that he and the executive council take immediate action to grant three full pardons that will erase the stigma of the court record.

SEEKS TO SAVE TRIO

The recommending of executive full pardon by the commissioner of correction is almost without precedent in Massachusetts. Commissioner Lyman never before made such a recommendation.

Neither the commissioner nor the governor would discuss the case but the department of correction's action became known to this paper from an authentic source.

(Ed. Note: Governor Curley later told State House correspondents: "When the executive council meets on Thursday I will recommend that a full pardon be given the girls. Judge Fisher is 75 years of age.")

Commissioner Lyman could, if he wished, release the girls immediately under the indenture system by which inmates are permitted to serve out sentences while working in the community in jobs obtained for them by the department. It is known, however, that he believes the girls should be given a fresh start in life without the black mark of a record as a handicap.

MOTHERLESS GIRLS

Helen Mahar, youngest of the three, is the daughter of William Mahar, a Lowell machinist. She attended parochial school in Lowell. Her mother died when she was seven and she is the oldest of five children.

The Mahars lost their home during the spring flood and were temporarily cared for by the Red Cross. Three younger sisters are now in St. Peter's Orphanage.

Catherine Groton is the daughter of Joseph Groton, a Lowell gardener. Death of her mother when she was 11 left seven children in the care of the father. She attended parochial and vocational school and Lowell Junior High. She worked on two or three temporary jobs as a nursemaid after leaving school.

Winifred Riley is the daughter of James Riley, a Lowell plumber. She is the second oldest of eight children and her mother died two years ago.

ATTENDED PARTY FIRST

She attended parochial school and three years of high school and worked for a short time as a ward maid at the Massachusetts Memorial Hospital in Boston.

She has gained more than five pounds since she arrived at Sherborn.

She told authorities that she and her companions had remained out later than they intended at a party and were on their way home when they saw the milk in the doorway and took it to drink.

There had been reports to police of milk thefts in the neighborhood and police had been watching closely. The girls were seen to take the milk.

They denied any previous thefts of milk and no other charge was brought against them.

All pleaded for probation and wept in court but one of the reports made in connection with the case states that they displayed a "disrespectful and rebellious attitude towards authority."

Manila, P. I., Oct. 20 (INS)—A plot to overthrow the Philippine Commonwealth by assassinating virtually all ranking officials was believed thwarted today when private cables from the radical Sakdal party's leader, now in Japan, were intercepted and decoded.

High on the list of persons marked for death were the American high commissioner and the archbishop, it was announced.

A roundup of Sakdal officials believed implicated was in progress. Eighteen were jailed immediately, and bombs, red flags and incriminating documents were found in their possession, it was announced. Two pedlars carrying 200 sticks of dynamite were arrested in San Juan, Rizal.

Dorothy at Guam On First Leg of Pacific Flight

Guam, Oct. 20 (INS)—We've put the first leg of the Pacific flight behind us.

Dropping down out of a red sunset, the China Clipper with its transpacific passengers landed on the harbor here at 6:58 p. m. today (1:58 a. m. E. S. T.).

I touched United States soil for the first time since I left New York on my helter-skelter dash around the world, September 30, and I'll confess to a few tears of joy in my eyes as I stepped onto the float to be welcomed by a cheering crowd of American naval officers and their wives.

The 1500-mile hop from Manila took us 13½ hours.

We're going to stay here overnight, and take off early tomorrow for Wake Island, 1450 miles away—Pan American Airways' second roosting place on the transpacific hop from the Orient to California.

Are You Guarding Your Child
THIS WAY—Asking Your Doctor About Home Remedies You Use?

Practically every mother knows the physician's rule. Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first. Children's specialists give this warning continually. And educators and writers on child welfare repeat it everywhere.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy — "milk of magnesia" — many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children. Made by an original process in a laboratory devoted solely to making this important remedy; there is no other "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Tablets that taste like peppermint candy, and that contain the equivalent of the liquid Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of tablets.

DEBUTANTES are very accomplished and well educated young ladies as a rule, but we are willing to bet that if they were given a geography quiz, Mary Wright would be one of the few who knew how to spell Czechoslovakia . . .

Mary really has an unfair advantage, however, for she has spent most of her life living and studying in the Balkan countries, which have all sorts of tricky names, while her father, J. Butler Wright, pursued his duties as United States Minister to Czechoslovakia . . .

BARBARA BREWER

Mary arrived in our midst last week to come out under the wing of her mother's sister, Mrs. Louis Bacon of Nahant . . . and since her arrival she has met practically all the girls in the right set to assure her bids to the best of the deb parties yet to come . . . Mrs. Bacon gave a luncheon for her at Nahant, and at a Sunday party given by Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell she impressed another group of young people with her charm and good looks . . .

Besides being away ahead of most of us on her geography, her continental education has made her somewhat of a linguist as well as an accomplished musician . . .

She and Nancy Cassels, who was one of her childhood playmates when the Wrights and Cassels were Washington neighbors, had a reunion today at the luncheon Nancy gave at the Ritz for the newcomer . . . There were 36 debs and post-debs present to sit with them at one large table . . .

The hostess wore a dressy black wool suit with a silver ascot and corsage of bouvardia, while Miss Wright sported one of the frocks she brought from Europe . . . a brown crepe model with bright green weskit and a small brown beret . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Wright are coming over from Prague later in the winter to join their daughter and the Bacons at Boca Grande after the whirl of Christmas parties is over . . . and in the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Bacon and their niece will move in town to 101 Chestnut street to give Mary all the advantages of living near the scene of debutante activities . . .

Fashionables at "Hamlet"

SOCIETY'S FIRST NIGHTERS and music lovers have become so accustomed to trailing through the marble corridors of the Opera House in soft silks and chiffons for the Metropolitan Opera and Ballet Russe that they have formed the habit of wearing full dress to every other opening at the Opera House . . . and last evening's audience at the world's premiere of Leslie Howard's "Hamlet" was no exception . . .

The presence of the "best-dressed girl on the North Shore" added a decided note of elegance to the occasion . . . Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., who piled up an enormous vote for "best dressed" last summer in the Casino's contest, was in a large party with the Philip Stocktons . . . Her finely pleated gown of black net had narrow shoe string shoulder straps and a big splash of color in the bright pink flowers on one shoulder.

There were a number of top hatted cavaliers in the crowd with the Stocktons and the sartorial effect of each of the ladies did them justice . . . Both Mrs. Stockton and her daughter, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., wore trailing black gowns with short velvet wraps with pearls and brilliants sparkling around their throats and in their hair . . .

Celina Robbins and Mrs. Arthur Devens, Jr., wore afternoon clothes, but Mrs. Alvan Fuller and her daughters were unanimous in their choice of vivid and good-looking evening attire . . . Mrs. Fuller's violet chiffon was a vivid contrast to Mary's electric blue net and Lydia's jade green with its long gold wrap . . . She had a pair of orange daisies nestled in her curls . . .

• • •

MRS. SAMUEL ELIOT wore a ruby red velvet wrap over a darker gown, and Nancy Whitman removed her wrap to reveal a low-cut gown of candy-stripped taffeta of rose cream and black . . . Marion Lawrence and Kay Winthrop attended with the former's mother, Mrs. Richard Lawrence, and Kitty Talbot attracted a great deal of attention with one of the new evening veils falling over her face and golden hair from a coronet of red balls to match her scarlet velvet gown . . .

Mrs. Richard Sears and her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, wore crimson gloves with their green and silver lame gowns . . . vieing in brilliance with the costumes of the ladies of the Danish court on the other side of the footlights . . .

We also noticed Arthur Fiedler, Mrs. Arthur Pearson, Miss Nella Pearson and Mr. and Mrs. William Coburn . . .

• • •

Mrs. Channing Wells is returning to her Brimmer street home today from a brief visit in Gotham, where she was a guest at the St. Regis . . . Mr. Wells went to Southbridge yesterday to cast an experienced eye over the business of the optical company which is the chief business interest of all the men in the Wells family . . .

Mrs. Francis G. Shaw of Highfields, Chatham, cut short her visit with Mrs. Edward Thaw of Milton last week to proceed even farther inland from the sand-dunes and cranberry bogs of the Cape to spend a few days with friends in Dublin . . . There's a possibility that Mrs. Shaw will be a more frequent subscriber to the Friday afternoons at Symphony, for she is considering the idea of spending the winter in town instead of in Chatham . . . She might even cast her lot with the group of society women trying their hand in the dress and gown business . . . In the meantime, until she decides, Mr. Shaw is enjoying the autumn at Highfields, and improving his art of carving wooden birds . . .

Many of Smart Set Attend Premiere at Shubert

Last evening, with its two major theatrical openings, presented somewhat of a problem to regular first nighters, yet whether they went to the Opera House to see Leslie Howard do Hamlet, or joined the Theater Guild subscribers at the Shubert for the opening of "Call It a Day," they all had a most enjoyable evening.

The members of each group are now praising the play they witnessed in such glowing terms, that they will probably change around this evening. The Guild first-nighters will brush up on their Shakespeare, while those who saw the tragic Prince of Denmark last evening will enjoy the clever, delightful humor of the English comedy.

Miss Jane Bancroft and her mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, were at the Shubert to learn what an unseasonably warm spring morning could do to Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper and their ordinarily smooth-running family and household. Jane was particularly enthusiastic in her applause for Glen Anders in his portrayal of a carefree portrait painter, for she appeared with him in "There's Wisdom in Women" which was presented by the Theater Guild last season. Last evening she wore a classic gown of pale blue satin.

Miss Rebekah Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, who is managing director of the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society in Boston, wore a striking outfit of a three quarter length flame color coat over a gown of the same flaming hue.

In Miss Hobbs' party was Miss Lavinia Sabine who wore dark blue crepe woven with sparkling threads of silver, and a corsage of purple orchids. Miss Evelyn Weatherby, who was looking her best in a dress of printed silk under filmy black net, and a shoulder cape of white fox, was esquired by Dr. Charles Vallender.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Toppan and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, regular Guild first nighters, were also at the opening. Mrs. French wore a sweeping black gown and a mantilla-like black shawl which was edged with a deep silken fringe. Mr. French enlivened the traditionally sober black and white of his dinner clothes with a bright pink boutonniere. Mrs. Toppan was in dark blue-green figured taffeta.

Others who attended the opening were Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. William Brace Pratt, Jack Royce, Miss Edith Parker, Miss Louise Condit, Mrs. Joseph H. Goodspeed, Mr. and Mrs. Addison C. Burnham, Mrs. Charles Peabody and Mrs George Putnam Metcalf.

Thursday Lectures

By MARGUERITE DOWNEY

Worthier use of leisure time might well be the sub-title of the series of lectures which are being given at the League House on alternate Thursday evenings.

Current literary and historical affairs will be discussed at the talks which are under the direction of Mrs. Frank C. Scanlon. The convenient hour of 6 o'clock has been decided upon as the time for meeting.

The aim of the course which opens Thursday evening is to give an unbiased presentation of national, state and local affairs and world politics. Eleanor Seavey is in charge of subscriptions.

Resuming its social activities on Thursday evening is the Arboretum Club of Jamaica Plain. The opening meeting of the season takes the form of a get-together supper and acquaintance party at Fraternity hall.

Following supper, a business meeting will be held under the direction of Mrs. William B. McNulty. Mrs. Frank Corcoran has arranged a delightful program of entertainment.

Star of the cast will be youthful Linus McDonald who will render a group of cornet solos. Others participating in the program are Mrs. William Dundon, Mrs. G. Frank McDonald, Kathleen Brooks, Norma Freeman, Mrs. Walter Toole and Mrs. Robert Cunningham.

Assisting Mrs. Corcoran with the arrangements for the evening are Mrs. Walter J. Costello, Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, Mrs. Nicholas Mercurio, Mrs. James McManus, Mrs. Lester Killian, Mrs. J. Joseph Callahan, Mrs. Charles Norton, Mrs. Henry Meissner and Mrs. Christopher Sheehan.

Ushering and planning table decorations are Mrs. William Dundon, Mrs. Alexander Cataldo, Mrs. William Donovan, Mrs. Stella Dolan, Mrs. William McCart and Mrs. James Corbett.

Also assisting are Katherine L. Hourihan, Mary Goode, Norma Freeman, Eleanor Reinhardt and Mrs. George Ambrose.

Aristos Club is putting out to sea for its Hallowe'en frolic. Invitations read: "Hallowe'en party at sea" and the setting for the soiree will be the main ballroom of the Hotel Somerset.

Mrs. Edward McManus, chairman of the fete, which swells the club's scholarship fund, will be aided by Madeleine Griffin of Hyde Park and Bertha McGinty of Allston.

Club members and their friends coming to the soiree will be welcomed by Sadie Kelly, Mrs. Frank Jerry, Mildred Collins, Gertrude Meaney, Mary O'Neill, Eileen Kiley, Mariam McDermott, Betty Gavin and Alice Pinkman.

Entertainment is to be arranged by Lillian Russell, Margaret Leen, Mary Connolly, Mary McGinty, Inez Schrickrt, Miriam Regan, Josephine Campana, Mary Downey and Mrs. Ralph Boynton.

"San Souci" is the gay name which the junior committee of the Harriet Tubman House has given to its benefit affair which is slated for Friday night at the Hotel Brunswick.

Doris Bullen heads the group of young people planning the soiree. Her assistants are Catherine Bullen of Cambridge, Eleanor Grady of Medford, Margaret Brewin of Everett, Eloise Touhy of Boston, Amelia and Alice Londry of Jamaica Plain, Grace Hanley, Dorothy Noonan of Brookline, Betty Carr of Roslindale, Margaret Frary of East Lynn, Frances Badger of Nahant and Marjorie Bentley of Wollaston.

Boston Symphony Excels In First of New Series

By RUTH MARSTERS

Serge Koussevitzky, conducting the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the first of the series of six Monday evening concerts of the season, presented a program in Symphony Hall last evening which one might well wish (though unfortunately in vain) to be often repeated.

Opening with Haydn's Symphony in B flat No. 102, it progressed through Debussy's "La Mer" (Three Orchestral Sketches) and concluded with Sibelius' Symphony No. 5 in E flat major.

As far as we are concerned these are precisely the three works in the concerts of the season so far which have been most successful in performance. (They have previously appeared this month on the programs of the regular Friday and Saturday concerts—the Haydn, it will be remembered was also performed by the orchestra at a concert in Sanders Theater during the Harvard Tercentenary Celebration.)

• • •

It is always amusing to point up contrasts especially when the subjects have the one quality in common—musical greatness.

We simply note then, in passing, that while Haydn could accept with apparent nonchalance commissions to write six new symphonies for as many concerts, (the Symphony in B flat, Op. 102 was one of the second series of six commissioned by the London impresario, Solomon), Sibelius, incapable of being a prolific writer, maintains that to increase his output would mean killing his reputation and his art. Of course there is no comparison, really, between the two.

In Sibelius' massive structures one is not primarily aware of the painstaking effort involved, it is true. Nothing is forced, neither is there room for anything of ephemeral significance. One feels Sibelius' symphonies, at least, to be profound expression of inner conviction.

• • •

On the other hand the ease with which Haydn wrote did not necessarily weaken the finished result. As is evidenced in this particular Symphony Op. 102, he could be charming without being superficial, skillful with no trace of the pedantic, and given to spontaneous expression utterly lacking in glibness.

Debussy's "La Mer" was again superbly performed. Dr. Koussevitzky's reading of the score is remarkable for its poetic intensity—the orchestra responded with utmost sensitiveness.

The audience was both large and appreciative.

WOMEN IN LOVE

By Mae Christie

CHAPTER 6

"Don't you think the fitted pouch-bag is simply the last word for anybody going on a winter cruise?" Ann snapped it open with enthusiasm, displaying its innumerable little gadgets. "And it isn't really a bit heavy to carry."

Brenda looked down her somewhat prominent nose.

"H'm. The depression's still on, young lady. People aren't going on cruises this winter."

"Oh yes, they are," exclaimed Ann. "I know dozens and dozens of people who have already booked passage on the Mediterranean, and for California by the Canal route, and the West Indies and Cuba. Look, Miss Selz, at this cunning pocket for a passport."

Brenda's lip curled into a wry smile.

"And you really think I should commit myself to an order on the off-chance of a few friends of yours buying these?"

"Why, the public would love them, Miss Selz. I know what women like."

A dark flush rose beneath the olive skin of the Gift Shop buyer as she said, with studied sarcasm: "Doubtless you've more experience than someone who has only spent 14 years in the buying and selling business!"

Ann was nonplussed.

"Please don't think I'm stupidly conceited or that I'd ever dream of setting up my opinion against yours. But this bag's so cheap at the [illegible] useful for any woman, even though she never goes further than Brooklyn—"

Which was a sad tactical error, since Brenda herself resided in the City of Churches, and had done so ever since her Ghetto days.

"I don't like the bag. It's too fancy. I won't take a chance on it."

"Then these lovely little bracelets? Only a dollar a pair, Miss Selz. Do look at the carving on the big square crystal plaques. Why, at all the balls and parties I've never seen the like of them. I know this season's debbies and post-debbies would fall for them, hook, line and sinker," Ann pleaded.

Forget Life

"May I give you a word of advice, Miss Delafield?" The buyer's voice had the sharp click of ice. "It's to forget your [illegible] Park avenue background, and remember that those lacking it have still contrived to make a pretty fair success of themselves, especially in business. In fact, it does not interest them to hear of the doings of what you imagine to be the 'upper crust'!"

The snub was so devastatingly severe that tears sprang to Ann's eyes. Bag, bracelets and wrapping paper in her hands, she walked blindly down the aisle thinking: "She wants me to quit. She resents that Mr. Bradley brought me to her, asking her to give me pointers."

Pointers, indeed!

Harsh!

What on earth did a comparison-shopper do with her finds (save the word!) when they were flatly turned down?

To take them to Mr. Bradley over the head of the Gift Shop buyer would be to make her a permanent enemy. For young as Ann was, she had a wise head on her slender shoulders and knew women's [illegible].

"And how did the morning go, Miss Delafield?" Standing near the Costume Jewelry counter was Mr. Bradley himself.

Ann blinked, swallowed hard, then found her voice.

"Not as good, I'm afraid. I—I made an error of judgment."

No use to hide the bag and bracelets from him, for in her hurry to get away from Brenda Selz she had not waited to re-wrap the articles.

"I'd like to pay for these myself," she added quickly. "I mean, when they're not right, not what is wanted, it wouldn't be fair to make the store take the loss."

"Hold on. Let me have a look at them." Taking her purchases from her, he moved over with Ann to the Costume Jewelry counter. He set the goods down on the glass top and examined one of the two bracelets.

Call Blonde

"Miss Schmidt!" A lift of his brow summoned a buxom blonde. "Don't you think this is unusually attractive?" "Where did you find the bracelets, Miss Delafield? And what did you pay for them? Miss Schmidt, Miss Delafield is our new comparison-shopper."

Ann named place and price.

"Why, I think they're lovely, Mr. Bradley!" Miss Schmidt turned the baubles in her big, capable hands. "They're beautifully made, and very French-looking. Most original, I'd say. The women'll sure fall for them. That's my opinion. At that price I'd be glad to put in an order for them, Mr. Bradley."

The merchandise manager took a bracelet from her, examining inner marking and clasp. "Get the manufacturers on the phone, Miss Schmidt—Gus Aronheim for a start, will you?—and if it's okay and they can get the goods over by Saturday noon, say, you can bring the bracelet to the conference in my office at 2:30 and we'll run it in the Sunday ad."

Miss Schmidt moved quickly off. Ann took the plunge.

"But—but I didn't make it clear to you, I'm afraid. You see, the bracelets and this bag have been already turned down!"

He tried to suppress a smile at her naivete. The child was honest and straightforward. And it was loyal of her to keep the Gift Shop buyer's name out of it, though from across the main floor he had seen her leave Brenda's department, for, like the public, he had eyes all over his head. That was his job.

"Now for a look at the bag. How much did it cost?"

She told him. She showed him its smart little fittings, but no longer did she enthuse about it. Let it stand on its own merits, since previous enthusiasm had defeated itself.

"Leave this with me. I'll get a consensus of opinion. Meantime, Miss Delafield, you might study our sales in the store."

She looked blankly at him. This was so much Greek to her!

Maine APPLE Pan DOWDY

By MARTHA LEE

HARVEST festivals mean apples in abundance. There is health in them and a deliciousness that knows no equal. The Norsemen claim that apple juice is the secret of the fountain of youth.

Here is a recipe served at the American Dietetic Association luncheon. There are many recipes for Apple Pan Dowdy, some made with a rich biscuit dough and others call for a pie crust covering. The ones which we have traced to the earliest dates are made by a most original method.

The particular recipe has been handed down through several generations of Maine forbears. To Mrs. Alice G. Given of Bergenfield, New Jersey, whose birthplace was Cambridge, Massachusetts, and whose parents came from Maine, we are indebted for permission to print historical directions for Maine Apple Pan Dowdy.

MAINE APPLE PAN DOWDY

2 quarts sliced apples (7 to 8—6 oz.)
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup molasses (Porto Rican)
¼ cup water
3 tablespoons butter.

Line a casserole with pie crust. Mix sugar, spice and salt together and pour over apples, when well distributed, fill casserole. Add molasses, butter and water. Cover with pie crust and tuck edges together, press to sides of casserole. Place in oven, 425 deg. F., and bake for ¾ of an hour, decrease temperature to 325 deg. F. When crust has browned slightly and apples are tender, remove from oven. Take a silver knife and chop up the mixture, being sure that the pie crust is thoroughly mixed with apples. If dry or not sufficiently sweetened, add more water and molasses. Return to oven and bake 1½ hours at 325 deg. F. When finished, the pudding will look very much like Old Fashioned Brown Betty. Mrs. Given says that the proper way to serve Apple Pan Dowdy is to serve hot with butter. This pudding can be warmed over, in fact it is even more delicious on the second or third day.

BAKED APPLE DUMPLINGS

1 1-3 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup shortening
½ cup milk (about)
4 tart apples, cored and pared
1 tablespoon butter
4 tablespoons brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in the shortening until mixture is as fine as corn meal. Add milk and mix until a soft dough is formed. Turn out on floured board, knead lightly for about 20 seconds, and roll into a 12-inch square. Cream butter with brown sugar and salt and fill cores of apples with mixture. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Moisten edges of dough with cold water. Bring up four corners of dough to top of apple and press edges together. Brush with milk. Place in a well greased open pan and bake in a hot oven of 400 deg. F. for 30 to 35 minutes. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

APPLE UPSIDE DOWN SPICE CAKE

¼ cup shortening
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice
⅔ cup sugar
1 egg unbeaten
1½ cups flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
2 cups apples, sliced
3 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons milk

Combine one-fourth cup shortening, salt and spices. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Sift flour and baking powder together three times. Add small amount of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Melt three tablespoons of shortening and butter together; add brown sugar and milk, mix well. Arrange apples in an 8-inch pan that has been well greased. Spread brown sugar mixture over apples and pour batter over all. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 50 to 60 minutes. Serve upside down with whipped cream. Serves 8 to 10.

THANK-YOU NOTES

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I was away for the week-end and I would like to write a letter of thanks for the hospitality of my hosts and for the gifts that they gave me. Please tell me just how this letter should be worded. M.

Your letter of thanks might be worded something like this:

Dear Mary:

What a perfect hostess you are, and what a perfect host Bob is, and what perfect hospitality you gave me on my visit with you and your family! I can't begin to tell you what a happy time I had. Memories of the most delightful kind fill my thoughts, and I thank you, with all my heart, for your goodness to me. It was such a joy being in your lovely home, and meeting your charming friends.

And then, after all this hospitality, to be given such wonderful gifts! The evening bag is a beauty. I've worn it, very proudly, twice already, and everyone has admired it, enviously. Thank you again for its beauty. And thank you too . . . this letter seems to be a continuous "hymn of thanks" . . . for the fine books. I'm going to begin them at once.

My dearest love to you and Bob and Alice, and thank you and bless you for the wonder of your goodness and generosity to me.

Future of Medicine

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT IS a joy to the doctor when a desperately sick patient makes a nice recovery. It is far less dramatic to stop an epidemic or to prevent an infection with typhoid or diphtheria. But who can doubt that disease prevention is far more important than its treatment and cure?

In the past quarter of a century great advances have been made in medicine. New germs, new diseases and new methods of treating old diseases have been discovered.

As I view it, the most important of all the progress in medicine is the development of what is known as preventive medicine. This has lessened disease, decreased the number of deaths per year and greatly increased the expectation of life.

Notable among these advances are the various methods of giving immunization against disease. The word "immunization" is applied to the results of inoculation or vaccination, developing in the body powers of resistance which enable it to fight off infections and contagious disease.

Smallpox has been all but eradicated. Cases of this one-time dread infection are now seldom heard of in civilized countries. This marked change can only be attributed to universal vaccination.

All children should be vaccinated against smallpox before they are one year old.

LEWIS HANEY ON TRADE

New Season Spurt
IN AUTO INDUSTRY
Appears Probable

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Oct. 20—Business activity, according to last week's reports, was fully maintained. Unseasonably warm weather has affected the retail trade volume unfavorably; but most indications point to a recovery from the October lull and there are enough stimulants ahead to suggest new highs toward the end of the year.

Government distributions of "soil conservation" checks begin going out to farmers next week. An outpouring of larger corporation dividends is sure.

These will help the automobile industry to expand as the new season gets under way, which is about all that is needed to stage a further rise.

* * *

Steel production seems to be lagging a little and sufficient irregularity has developed in demand to justify the conclusion that buying has been artificially stimulated.

It does not seem likely, however, that for the present this is any more than a brief hesitation.

First, the automobile industry is now stepping up its output at a brisk pace, and the all-steel cars of today require a great deal of metal.

Second, price advances are probable for steel, to be effective in the first quarter. This will "drive in" more buying.

Thus, if overproduction be developing in steel, it is not likely to have much effect until the turn of the year.

Much depends upon the motor industry. It seems probable that, with so large a number of eight-year-old cars in use, prices so reasonable and competition so keen, the sales and output will rise rapidly between now and December.

* * *

About the only major industry, then, that is not doing much is building. In this case, there is hope that private activity is gradually replacing government spending.

Railway carloadings, however, are up to a new seasonal peak, and are again the highest since 1930.

* * *

Although the general trend of commodity prices throughout the world is upward, the average of prices in the United States was off a little last week. The world crop outlook caused a slight decline in grains.

Perhaps the "devaluation" rush had something to do with a reaction in tin, rubber and hides. There were a good many advances, however, including flour, cocoa, cotton, silk, wool tops and foreign copper.

Prices in England and France are rising, as their currencies depreciate, and in England, at least, an inflationary boom seems under way. In the United States not only is the credit and currency base for inflation prepared, but also we now find sufficient confidence returning to bring an expansion of bank loans. Under these conditions, it is fairly safe to count on an upward trend in commodity price averages.

* * *

The tripartite monetary agreement among England, France and the United States has been extended to provide that the United States will allow gold to go out to England and France. Mr. Morgenthau will sell gold at a price which he will fix from day to day. (Shades of Professor Warren!)

This is interesting in two ways.

First, it virtually scraps the President's fixed gold parity of the dollar at $35 to the ounce. In the second place, it looks like a step toward a so-called "free gold market" in this country.

I say "so-called," because the government owns all the gold and will not allow any real free market.

MARKET
Stale on UPSIDE
DESPITE OPTIMISM

New York, Oct. 20 (INS)—Despite widespread bullish optimism, the market seems to have gone temporarily stale on the upside.

Although there was a real boom movement yesterday in such groups as oils, coppers and steels, the list as a whole showed a disposition to hang back, with minor declines the rule at the final gong.

Industrials were down 21 cents, rails were off 20 cents and utilities were 5 cents lower.

While these losses were negligible, many Wall Street observers were inclined to believe that progress from this point would continue in a highly selective vein, with speculators taking on a more cagey view of the situation, and guiding their operations accordingly.

This was apparent after the start Monday, when the first rush of public buying failed to usher in an all-around advance as had been the case in the last fortnight.

Oils, though, developed a momentum all their own on another set of brilliant earnings reports, with the usually inactive Atlantic Refining the outstanding favorite. Copper shares again were actively bought on the rise in the foreign price of the red metal to 10½ cents, while the steel shares, looking ahead to next week's quarterly statements, advanced smartly, despite a tapering off in operations this week.

The biggest disappointment to the trading fraternity was the sluggishness in auto shares, which had been touted as this week's A number one special, in an effort to discount the annual motor show next month.

Utilities continued to run into hard luck. Just when it appeared that new sponsorship had developed to guide the market destinies of this group through their immediately overhanging resistance levels, the Supreme Court handed down a decision refusing to rule on a government municipal power loan case, regarded as a minor defeat for the private utility companies.

RETAIL
Profits
RISE
TRADE OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

New York, Oct. 20—Steady improvement in retail trade this year and the definitely favorable prospects augur well for the profits of the majority of the better situated retail firms for 1936, says the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, in a current analysis of retail sales.

Despite disappointing reports during the early weeks of September, department store sales expanded sharply during the last ten days of the month and gains ranging from 7 per cent to 21 per cent were scored all over the country.

The average improvement amounted to 14 per cent. Variety chains also showed a marked betterment, with sales rising approximately 12 per cent, while mail order concerns continued to lead the field with a gain in excess of 32 per cent.

Trade continued brisk during the first half of October, stimulated by cooler weather and the large amount of moving which took place, which increased sales of furniture and home furnishings.

For the full month, sales gains running as high as 20 per cent are expected. Further progress is expected during the final two months of the year. As sales during November and December of 1935 were highly favorable, especially in the larger industrial centers, the percentage improvement is likely to be moderately smaller than that of recent months. Nevertheless, the best Christmas season since 1929 is in prospect.

As retail prices (measured by the Fairchild retail price index) are currently 1.2 per cent higher than at the beginning of the year and wholesale prices slightly below the January 1 levels, profit margins of department stores, variety chains and mail order concerns have widened.

This spread has been aided by the increased sales, which have kept inventories clean and prevented excessive markdowns. Consequently, substantial expansion in the net incomes of the majority of the better situated mail order and department store concerns are probable. The variety chains should show a fair, but more moderate improvement.

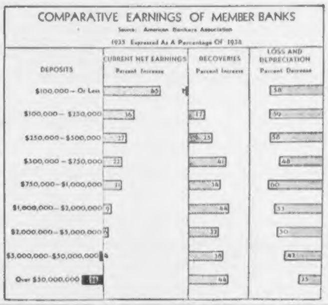
MEMBER BANKS



COMPARATIVE EARNINGS OF MEMBER BANKS
Source: American Bankers Association
1935 Expressed As A Percentage Of 1934

1934, 1935
Earning Records Shown

The earning records of all Federal Reserve member banks in 1935 as compared with 1934 reveals that the small banks were able to realize greater net returns on their operations than the larger banks.

Expressing net earnings in 1935 as a percentage of 1934, we find that banks having deposits of $100,000 or less were able to increase their net earnings 65 per cent.

This increase in net earnings diminished as the size of banks grew larger until there was an actual loss in banks having deposits of over $5,000,000.

The explanation for this is the fact that the larger banks are the principal holders of government securities and their earning power chiefly depends upon the interest received from such securities. During 1935 the prevailing interest rates on government securities are low and this reflected itself in bank earnings.

The smaller banks have the advantage over the larger ones in that they are carrying a higher proportion of their loans at a more profitable rate of interest. These loans generally are made to local industries. Also, a great many of these banks have entered the small loan field for personal and automobile financing.

During 1935 all the banks were able to make substantial reductions in losses and depreciation on loans and investments. Recoveries on losses in 1935 continued to show a marked improvement with the exception of the banks in the smaller class.

Wabash Holds Revenue Gains

Operating revenues of Wabash Railway in September totaled around $3,850,000, against $3,462,165 a year before, up about 11 per cent. Revenues in first eight months were fractionally more than 11 per cent ahead of a year ago.

In the first week of October freight revenues were roughly 10 per cent ahead of the like 1935 period and passenger revenues up around 3 per cent. While loadings of revenue freight the first half of the month failed to show quite as large an increase as the first seven days, business in last half of the month is expected to raise the October figures to a level approximately as favorable as that of other recent months.

With gross about $390,000 more than the same month last year, September net operating income is expected to be around $437,000, against $436,000 in September, 1935. Operating expenses in the month this year were up roughly $320,000 and taxes increased $76,000, the latter principally due to pension and social security legislation.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Oct. 20—With September freight traffic running better than 16 per cent above a year ago, Texas & Pacific Railway for the first nine months of 1936 lifted its net income to over $1,044,000 or 40 cents a common share, against $582,000 or $2.46 a preferred share in the like 1935 period.

The road is a link in the Missouri Pacific system, the only important subsidiary of Missouri Pacific not in receivership. Texas & Pacific was one of the few railroads of the nation to report full coverage of fixed charges throughout the depression. While earnings and freight traffic of the road have been rising, rail observers point out that the carrier benefits substantially from the emergency freight surcharges, which expire December 31. As a result of the surcharges in effect last year on fruits and vegetables, coupled with absence of distress rates on livestock during the period, Texas & Pacific was able to show a 53 per cent rise over 1934 in gross revenues, despite a nominal decline in freight volume.

Rumor of Cement Merger Squelched

Rumors in financial circles to the effect that Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement and Lehigh Portland Cement were carrying on negotiations looking to a merger of the two concerns were promptly squelched by officials of both companies yesterday. The statement was made that it was not known why the gossips should have arisen inasmuch as there never have been any discussions between the two companies on that score and none was contemplated.

* * *

American Tobacco Dividend Outlook

None of the lists of stocks prepared by Wall Street forecasters promising higher dividends because of the undistributed profits tax has mentioned American Tobacco. This is because the company has failed to earn full requirements on the combined common and Class B stocks in recent years, although the $5 rate has been maintained on both. It is currently doubted in some quarters whether this year's earnings will cover the dividends, although the company has enjoyed an upward sales trend. The impression prevails that higher tobacco costs have largely offset the saving from the abolition of the processing tax. Informed brokerage circles, too, see little likelihood of an increase in wholesale cigarette prices to counteract the rise in raw material costs.

* * *

K. C. Southern Operating Net

Kansas City Southern Railway freight loadings thus far this year on a cumulative basis are better than 30 per cent above a year ago. Revenues for September were likewise up 30 per cent, and this lifted the road's gross to $1,188,000 for the month, a gain of $332,000 over last year. September operating net at $223,000 was better than $44,000 above last year. It is over the first nine 1936 months, however, that the net improvement in Kansas City Southern's operations are shown. Gross revenues for the first nine months were $2,832,000 above the like 1935 period, which operating net was $1,424,000 above last year, showing that Kansas City Southern in the nine months' period translated $1,408,000 or almost 50 per cent gross increase into operating net.

Goodall May Manufacture In England

It is rumored that President William N. Campbell and Vice-President Everett Nutter of the Goodall Worsted Company, who sailed abroad a few days ago, will while in England make arrangements for manufacturing Palm Beach cloth in that country.

Present plans, not as yet definitely formulated, are said to contemplate leasing of an English plant and merchandising of Palm Beach cloth in the British empire through Selfridge's, the big London department store.

It is stated that this plan has been decided upon because the "Buy British" slogan and tariff protection make it expensive to export American-made Palm Beach cloth to England.

Tax Program
NEEDED
RACKET OF EXEMPTIONS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

New York, Oct. 20—Irrespective of the outcome of the election and even assuming vastly superior political management, the cost of government in the United States will be considered high.

Accordingly, a major national need is the formulation of a scientific tax program, in favor of the current hit or miss policy for soaking the thrifty.

The people need to free themselves from the delusion that any form of taxation will be entirely painless.

The first need is to work out a cooperative arrangement among the Federal Government, the States and the local subdivisions as to their proper respective spheres of taxation.

The second requirement is to stop the racket of tax exemption.

The people of Los Angeles, Cal. will soon vote on a charter amendment intended to authorize the sale of the electric properties of Los Angeles Gas and Electric Co. to the city owned utility. A by-product of this transaction will be to take an important taxpayer from the tax roll and thus further reduce the tax base.

Likewise, the tendency of the federal government to get into various types of business activities has created significant tax-free agencies operating in various states and municipalities.

As government supplants private enterprise, under the American tax theory, it kills off taxpayers, and puts corresponding burdens on the remaining taxpayers.

Of course, the most unjust exemption pertains to tax-exempt governmental bonds.

As long as these bonds are available for investment, the whole theory of a progressive tax paid in accordance with ability to pay is vitiated. It works only against the productive and creative rich, and not against the idle rich, who have a perfect avenue for escape from the burdens of taxation in the form of tax-exempt securities.

The people of one great Commonwealth recently turned thumbs down on a Senator who habitually advocated soaking the rich through taxation, while he was reported to have protected his own personal fortune through investment in tax exempt bonds.

A constitutional amendment would be required to deal with this type of legalized evasion.

TRUST REPORTS

Profits to GO TO HOLDERS In Cash

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The statement of condition released by the Massachusetts Investors Trust today reveals many eliminations from the stock portfolio, as well as reductions in holdings, and some new purchases.

At the same time trustees announced that realized profits now stand at $2,560,085, or the equivalent of 65 cents per share. It is their intention to distribute these to stockholders before the end of the year.

These gains from the sale of securities must be passed on to holders of the trust's shares in order to avoid tax penalties, as we understand it, and are to be considered as separate from normal income. In order that stockholders may avoid dilution of their interest in the trust a plan giving each an option to take their pro rata share of realized profits in stock will be provided.

The bond market as reflected by the Associated Press averages has been a colorless affair for the past week or 10 days. Industrials have been firm around their bull market highest, but disposed little inclination to set a new peak when the opportunity was offered. Utilities, after going to fresh highs early this month, seemed to lose ambition and gradually sloughed off. Rails, the real backbone of the lien section since summer, seized their chance for a rest, and did little of note. Foreigns were simply lazy and stood practically still. In view of current stock market behavior utilities are the most promising group. And at the same time negative action would throw cold water on the efforts of equities in the same group.

* * *

Notebook: Darby Pete, long ago a favorite low priced oil with us, and now a respected candidate for the medium price bracket, is expected to show full year earnings of $1.50 per share . . . Another lift in earnings by Simmons estimators . . . To $4.50 per share . . . National Gypsum had the largest September in its history, we hear . . . Jones & Loughlin is expected to earn $2 per share in the third quarter alone . . . City Auto Stamping is doing well according to reports and may show close to $1.75 per share . . . Reed Roller Bit is looked on with favor in investment circles.

* * *

The most important test of the rotating tactics of those interested in the current advance is at hand. The utilities took the spotlight at the opening this morning and now must prove their case. Should they fail the tired rails must be trotted out again, and we will see storm signals flying in such an event. For the carrier group only has two or three points upside leeway. The desired action is a strong upmove in the power and light section which has plenty of overhead room and real reason—aside from political influence, which we believe to be less of a factor—to go ahead.

* * *

Boardroom Briefs: Readers of this column have the utilities if they followed advices of recent dates . . . And with Consolidated Edison, the natural leader, across 46, we are convinced they will soon have some nice profits . . . Incidentally, if the utilities do get away in here, and we think they will, this intermediate leg of the advance should be good for at least another week . . . Hercules Motor's registration statement shows that, as of September 10, the first seven stockholders held 176,997 shares of stock . . . Out of 310,000 . . . Further, we hear Chevrolet will use Hercules motors in their export trucks next year . . . And more, the Diamond T truck is expected to come out with a 1½ to 2-ton truck for domestic use . . . We would buy this Diesel motor stock on all dips for long-term holding.

STOCKS Drowsy AFFAIR

TRADING PACE LESS ACTIVE

New York, Oct. 20—The stock market turned drowsy today and many of the recent favorites yielded some of their gains reluctantly.

Trading dwindled throughout the list after fairly active early dealings, comforting bulls who took the tendency toward dullness on the recession as an indicator of inherent market strength.

Utilities, oils and scattered industrial specialties carried on the advance in a half-hearted manner. Third quarter earnings reports, showing further profit gains, stimulated a little buying here and there.

Inertia also overtook bonds and leading commodity markets. Secondary bonds were inclined to sag along with stocks and commodities were mixed and narrow. The British pound led foreign currencies in a modest rally against the dollar.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other steel shares dropped fractions to more than a point on selling attributed by brokers partly to the setback in operations of the industry this week.

Profit-taking in rail shares was traced in part to a feeling that freight movement was due to taper soon following the recent substantial seasonal gains. Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were off fractions to about two points at one time.

Early buying shifted toward utilities, apparently on the expectation the upward trend of power production would bring more good news for that group. Some analysts insisted the power shares were behind the market.

Consolidated Edison, American Water Works, North American and other utility issues held early gains of fractions to more than a point.

A sharp rise in Sloss Sheffield contrasted with declines in leaders of the steel group. The common rose more than five points at one time. Sharon Steel also went counter to the leaders.

Others up fractions to more than a point included Fajardo Sugar, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Radiator and Douglas Aircraft. Losers down fractions to more than a point included Chrysler, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Can, Johns Manville and Sears Roebuck.

BIG EMPLOYERS

To Treat WORKERS Better

By B. C. FORBES

Employers, especially those heading large concerns, are going to take better care of their work folks. The well being of farmers is likely to continue to be largely the problem of the government.

Never before have so many corporation executives been so alive to the vital importance of winning the goodwill of their workers; also of making the public better acquainted with what industry means and does for national stability and prosperity.

Extraordinary responses have been received by this writer to his recent exhortations on this subject.

Illustrations follow:

President G. F. Swift of the world's largest packing company, when I talked with him the other day, had his organization compile a detailed list of the steps taken, over a period of years, to better their workers.

* * *

President James E. Davidson of the Nebraska Power Company asked these questions the other day of a gathering of employers in the electrical industry:

"What sort of presentation are you making to your public?

"What kind of co-operative job are you doing with your employes?

"What kind of co-operative job are you doing with your stockholders?"

In course of a most intelligent address, he said:

"All forces possible must combine to sell to all America a greater appreciation of our good service, our progressiveness, and our policy of consistently lowering the cost of electric service.

"If we place our electric companies and their accomplishments on proper public display, I know the people will be fair and just in their thinking.

"Why should you expect to have the backing of your customers . . . why should you expect to hold their confidence and respect, if you keep them in ignorance of the truth regarding your company and the industry?

"The majority of our companies have worked spasmodically to furnish their employees with information, so that those employes can properly represent their companies. To Mr. and Mrs. Public, the employe with whom they deal is the company. Your ployes are loyal; they are interested; they have pride, and they want to be able to discuss intelligently their company's problems. Why not make it possible for them to obtain the facts which they are rightfully seeking?"

* * *

Cooperative national advertising by industrial, insurance, banking and other important groups is essential to combat the public's lack of sound knowledge regarding what's what, especially regarding the service they render and the essentiality of fighting political experiments calculated to discourage expansion of enterprise and employment.

ARTHRITIS

Miss Alice Bublonski, 373 Cambridge St., Cambridge, Mass., says: "I had suffered for three years from backache, constipation and headache. I was treated by a local doctor but did not get better. I could not sleep nights on account of the pains in my back. Mr. Grimes told me of Dr. Walsh and said that if anyone could help me Dr. Walsh could. Mr. Grimes and his family had been successfully treated by Dr. Walsh. I had Dr. Walsh treat me and his treatment has been so successful that I make this statement that others who suffer hopelessly may know where to go for relief." Signed Alice Bublonski.

THE SUPREME COURT IS THE REFUGE OF THE MINORITY

CLASS and racial distinctions and religious bigotry were outlawed by this nation's fathers.

The right of Americans of whatever descent to work and worship in this land of the free, each according to the dictates of his bent and conscience, was established by the Constitution of the United States.

That right the Supreme Court of the United States has zealously guarded.

Real Americans will not permit the guard to be relaxed.

THERE is a real, a grave danger that the Roosevelt administration, if returned to power for another four years, would remove major obstacles to the growth of class and racial distinctions and bigotry in this country.

There is a very real, a very grave danger that changes contemplated by the Roosevelt administration would open wide the door for the entrance and unchecked spread of those forces which do not believe the United States should be a land of free worship regardless of color and creed.

Those who would favor racial and religious feeling in this country, like the Communists in this country, are supporting the Roosevelt administration.

Their support, like the support the administration is receiving from the Communists, is founded on the belief of the supporters that the administration's way is their way.

There is good reason for the belief.

THE good reason for the belief is that the Roosevelt administration, if returned to power, will tamper with, or attempt to tamper with, the Constitution of the United States and the Supreme Court of the United States and adjust both to an amicable view of the ultimate aims of the Roosevelt administration.

The administration has no intention of adjusting its own designs to the Constitution and the Supreme Court.

Once the power of the Supreme Court is usurped, abrogated or by any other means curbed, the way is open in this country for the spread of racial and religious hatred and the persecution of the minorities.

THE Supreme Court is the protector of the minorities. Real Americans will protect the Supreme Court by defeating the New Deal, and so protect their Constitution and themselves as real Americans.

Soft-pedaled during recent weeks, as the campaign tightened, was the attitude of the Roosevelt administration towards the Constitution and the Supreme Court. That attitude has undergone no change. Though the intentions so blatantly voiced earlier in the year by the Tugwells and Wallaces have become the secrets of the autumn, this is an indication merely that the directors of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign are hoping real Americans have forgotten.

The Supreme Court curbed the unconstitutional acts of President Roosevelt and restored a vestige of Americanism to an administration that had regimented business and industry and agriculture under NRA and AAA.

BUT the Supreme Court did not curb the intention of the Roosevelt administration to realize its aims regardless of the Supreme Court.

The proof of this lies in President Roosevelt's promises to revive acts voided as unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, and in similar declarations by his son.

The proof of it lies in Secretary Wallace's utterances and book, which are no more, no less than propaganda seeking the scrapping of the Constitution.

Without doubt the EXPLANATION of it lies in the recent observation of Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College, and a supporter of Mr. Roosevelt in 1932:

"I believe the New Deal leadership has gone wild in seeking to capitalize the desire for change for political advantage."

CHANGES intended by the Roosevelt administration may mean not only regimentation of industry and business under un-American acts, but the end of minority and individual rights.

Any tampering with the Supreme Court power threatens the rights of the minorities and any transfer of even a share of that power to the Congress will not lessen the threat.

Real Americans will recall that when racial and religious prejudice spawned the Ku Klux Klan in this country, that organization controlled many Congressional votes. It is not impossible to imagine a Congress hostile to certain creeds and races. It is a possibility, however remote, this nation must not court.

Regardless of the aims of the Roosevelt administration the United States must keep inviolate the power of the Supreme Court which so notably upheld the rights of the minority in the case of Pierce vs. Society of Sisters in 1925.

The state of Oregon, passing a law requiring all normal children between eight and sixteen to attend its public schools, ordained the abolition of every parochial and private school within its boundaries.

To the Supreme Court of the United States the issue was carried. There the Catholic Society of Sisters was supported by the American Jewish Committee, the Lutherans, the Protestant Episcopal Church and the Seventh Day Adventists.

IN a memorable opinion declaring the Oregon law unconstitutional, Mr. Justice McReynolds made these points:

"The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all governments in this Union repose excludes any general power of the state to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instructions from public teachers only. The child is not the mere creature of the state; those who nurture him and direct his destiny have the right, coupled with the high duty, to recognize him and prepare him for additional obligations . . .

"If no relief had been possible prior to the effective date of the act, the injury would have become irreparable."

Opposition to the rights of churches, Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, to educate their children in their own schools is not new in this world nor in this country. The Oregon act was the strongest foothold it ever obtained in the United States. The United States Supreme Court stamped it out.

Keep it stamped out by keeping the Supreme Court inviolate.

Keep the Supreme Court inviolate by stamping out its menace.

Governor Landon Offers Real Recovery

THE NEED of a government in Washington capable of restoring the confidence of the people in the future of business and employment was ably discussed by Governor Landon in his Grand Rapids address.

Confidence is the vital element that has been lacking in much of the nation's struggle for recovery.

Confidence in the assurance that government will not impose harmful restrictions upon business, confidence in the security of a worker's job and an employer's investment—these are things essential to recovery.

Governor Landon knows real confidence cannot return to the people until they have a national government based on efficiency and constitutional methods.

It is his intention to give the country that kind of a government. He expressed that intention in these words at Grand Rapids:

"Once the government at Washington has been restored to an efficient and constitutional basis, there is going to be a general revival of confidence through the country. And confidence is the forerunner of recovery."

MR. LANDON'S plan for real recovery embodies all the hopes of Americans who are convinced prevailing government policies have served as barriers to their attainment. He defines recovery thus:

"We mean a revival of agriculture, commerce and labor that will offer our unemployed real jobs again at the best of wages. This is the only permanent cure for unemployment."

In other words, Governor Landon plans to make the government an ally of labor and business, not a menacing mentor.

He will administer the government in accordance with constitutional law, not in avoidance or violation of it.

He will accept his election as a mandate requiring him to conserve the resources of the nation, not to exhaust them in futile search for a cure worse than the disease.

The New Taxes on Wages

THE NEW DEAL tax on pay envelopes, which will go into effect in January, will give wage earners a good idea of who Santa Claus really is.

The workers of the nation are just beginning to realize they are going to wind up wearing the Christmas whiskers.

Their pay envelopes will be MINUS ONE PER CENT, starting in January, with the government getting the money.

The New Deal's "take" will be THREE PER CENT in a few years.

If they EVER see the money again, it will be twenty years later when they MAY share in the New Deal conception of "fifty cents a day security."

With this in prospect, workers know what Governor Landon meant when he said:

"It is the farmers and LABORING MEN of this country who eventually will play the role of Santa Claus in the Administration's program."

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

MR. FARLEY,
Mgr. U. S. Govt.
Dear Mr. Farley:

I got some bad news for you, Mr. Farley. The Republicans have stole Mr. Roosevelt's idea of telling folks Ferry Tails on the radio.

It all begun when Mr. Roosevelt thunk up that ferry tail about how he saved U. S. Buziness. He jumped in the lake & pulled out the old Gent that was drowning in a Silk Hat. But the silk hat got lost, and Old Man Buziness got mad.

Well, the Republicans says the silk hat diden't get lost, because Mr. Roosevelt is useing it to keep his white rabbits in and they are passing around a Republican Ferry Tail, which I am hearby encloseing copy of.

HOW THE KING FED THE HUNGRY CHILDREN

Once upon a time there was a King. He lived in a big white house, and he loved to give away other people's money.

One day when the King was out walking, disguised as a common man, he came upon some hungry children who were begging for food. A rich old gentleman in a silk hat was giving money to the children.

"My friend," said the good King, "thou shouldst not give thy gold to these children, for that is Charity, and it shames them."

"Forsooth," said the old gentleman, "if thou hast a better plan to keep these poor children from starving, I would gladly give thee ear."

"Then give ME thy gold," said the King, "and thou shalt learn my plan."

The old gentleman gave his gold unto the King. The King, in turn, gave it unto the hungry children. "Go ye and eat, my children," said the King. "When this rich old rogue gave thee his gold, thou was fed by Charity. But since I have taken his gold, and given it unto ye with mine own hand, thou art fed by my Royal Generosity."

At these words, all the children in the land fell upon their knees, for they perceived that he who spake was a King in disguise, and that the royal hand is quicker than the eye of a rich old gentleman in a silk hat.

And while they were on their knees, giving thanks, the good King smiled and went back into the big white house.

Isn't It So?

Human nature is often a bundle of prejudices. We act on our own likes and dislikes as often as on our reason.

The best gain is to lose. A wound never heals so well but the scar can be seen.

A defaulter may be six feet tall and ten thousand dollars short.

A well-filled body does not believe in hunger.

One head cannot hold all wisdom.

Education which teaches self-control is what many need to use.

Brevity is the greatest charm of eloquence.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 20—Bob Burns doesn't make up all those gee-haw names he mentions as living in his native Van Buren, Ark. I have a note from a lawyer there—Clyman E. Izard—who sends a special edition of the Van Buren Press Argus. A journalistic whoop for their No. 1 Citizen.

Just as Will Rogers put Claremore, Okla., on the map so has Burns less auspiciously made Van Buren known. Every day the tiny burg swarms with auto tourists who want to have a peek at the place. As a result the town has enjoyed what its proud citizenry calls The Bob Burns Boom.

The visitor buys something as a souvenir. A high pressure Chamber of Commerce could not possibly achieve what the hillbilly comedian has by the simple expedient of spoofing his native heath. But it is not all just acting. His sentimentality is at times on the level. He likes the town.

Whenever he has a chance to slip the Hollywood halter, he lights a shuck for Van Buren to take up life where he left off and show off his Sunday clothes. And, of course, on these visits he dredges much yokel yamer for his radio broadcasts. His income now nudges $150,000 a year.

Another citizen of Van Buren writes: "It's so prosperous down here since the Burns Boom you can't get anybody to mow the lawn. Mine would strain the neck of a giraffe to see above the cockle burrs. All the lawn cutters have become guides for tourists."

Many sizable burgs are known by names of former sons. Paducah, Ky., is known as "Irvin Cobb's town." And so on. Even New York is known far and wide as O. Henry's Bagdad on the Subway.

All of which is remindful of how shamelessly a Tammanyized city has immortalized many of its grafting officials. But there is not even a marker at the little hotel in the 20's where O. Henry was a gentle lodger and wrote so many of his immortal stories.

Gift of prophecy note: In looking through an E. Phillips Oppenheim published in 1905 last evening I plopped into this—

"I will tell you a thing which you can think of when you are an old man and there are great changes and events to look back upon. A war between Germany and England is only a matter of time—a few short years, perhaps even months."

Oppenheim in another tome predicted dictatorship for Italy and the crack-up of Spain.

No one is more disconsolate than a middle-aged newspaper man who has just been sacked. To him it's the end of the trail. And a detour to some obscure journalistic niche without hope. One of the office failures to whom even cubs speak patronizingly. Old Mr. Soandso!

I tried to comfort one today who had found a new and younger face at his accustomed desk. But I could put little ring into it. I was too conscious of the lancination. Out of high drama into drab commonplaces. For few jobs appear exciting after a career of newspapering.

The Death Watch contains two new faces at theatrical openings this season—Richard Watts and Douglas Gilbert. Burns Mantle is now the dean of critics. And Eugene Kelsey Allen continues to spread that aura of persiflage that stamps the lobby wit. The reviewing stand this season is to have a short parade. Productions have been shucked down 50 per cent.

Rumors are that the last American hold-out against the Paris exodus, Gilbert White, the portrait painter, may soon abandon his chateau outside the city and move across the channel to London or return to America. White, brother of Stewart Edward, and a replica of Bryan in a Latin Quarter hat, has been the bounding spirit of the Place Vendome hoop-de-do for 20 years.

The Little Bad Man

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Any veteran policeman will tell you to look out for the runt, if you're going to mix up with bad men. I have heard Al Jennings, after he quit being a train robber, offer the same advice to all and sundry and Al knew a lot about it. He was both one of the toughest and one of the runtiest of bandits.

Edwin C. Hill

The news keeps on backing up the idea that the half-pint gunman is the more dangerous. The smaller the package, the more poisonous the contents. Here are these three Indiana bantamweight hoodlums, who had promised to "put Dillinger in the shade," beating up the sheriff at Greenfield with an iron bar they had worked loose and making their get-away. There seems to be a murderous desperation in many under-sized outlaws, missing in the heftier thugs.

DEADLY AS SERPENT

"Two-Gun" Crowley, around whom that savage gun battle raged in a New York apartment house several years ago, and who later was electrocuted, was a flat-chested little gangster who never had been big enough or strong enough to defend himself with his fists in slum gang fights. One of his childhood mates said that even when he was in short pants he was dangerous, always ready to bash a rival with a rock if he couldn't have his way. Before he was out of his 'teens, he was packing a gun.

There was "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, of Chicago—a warped, stunted little man who sprayed bullets around with no more concern than if they were gumdrops. Ferret-eyed, snarling, snag-toothed, he was as deadly as a cobra, the embodiment of hate.

There was Fernekes, that Pearl River bank bandit, no higher than a small jockey, who messed up half a dozen states with his gun play. Vincent Coll, accommodatingly knocked off by fellow thugs in a New York drug store two years ago, was a frail weakling who couldn't go two fast rounds with a Katydid.

From 1921 to 1933, England had a crime wave, something unusual over there. It started with the "smash-and-grab" racket, in which a small gang would break a plate glass window, loot the store and run. It finally spread to more daring forays and hold-ups, in which citizens and policemen were beaten or killed. The newspapers were puzzled with the fact that so many of this new crop of criminals were undersized men.

This run of lightweight killers is cited here, of course, as of interest entirely in the field of abnormal or congenital criminality. In the arts and statesmanship, one could recruit a legion of intelligent and creative men, from Alexander Pope to Napoleon and on down to La Follette, who happened to be small men. In normal behavior, size doesn't seem to count. You may find a frail and sickly Shelley or a physically and intellectually magnificent Goethe.

I have heard psychologists explain the homicidal proclivities of the small criminal. Many psychological findings seem a bit far-fetched to me, and I am inclined to keep my fingers crossed when I hear these pat explanations about "compensating" and the like. But it does seem reasonable that an undersized boy, tainted with criminality, will piece himself out with a rock or a club when he is small and a gun when he gets bigger.

It is understandable, of course, that in a thwarted, twisted mind, physical inadequacy coupled with an environment of violence, will turn to hatred, utilizing any means at hand to get on even terms.

Racketeers, of course, as distinguished from bank and train robbers and journeymen, run as much to bulk as law-abiding citizens. One could cite Al Capone and quite a string of other sizeable masters of extortion who organize villainies, and perhaps hire killers. But they rarely mix in the shooting matches.

MAY CLASSIFY THUGS?

Anthropologists, particularly those of the Harvard faculty, have done much research on the relation of normal stature to normal behavior. My impression is that they find no direct causal link between dwarfed stature and criminal tendencies, but they suggest that latent abnormal tendencies may be furthered by the defeat and frustration resulting from a small, frail body.

Just in passing, there is quite a group of up-to-date anthropologists who seem to be working back to the school of Lombroso and Ferrero—that is, the school of definite physical crime stigmata which, when we know enough will enable us to pick out and classify a criminal almost at a glance.

There is rapidly building up a whole new library on endocrine glands, physical characteristics and criminal tendencies.

In Vienna, particularly, they are doing some fascinating research in this field.
